USAF Promotions Slower in '58

OFFICER promotions in the top six grades of the Air Force will be chopped during the next fiscal year. This is brought out in a report on the Air Force officer grade structure which Secretary Quarles has sent to the Capitol.

The following chart shows Fiscal 1958 promotion plans as compared with promotions in fiscal years 1956 and 1957.

Grade	FY 1958	FY 1957	FY 1956
General	25	51	47
Colonel	300	302	300
Lt. Colonel	960	962	964
Major	2,060	2,000	1,895
Captain	5,938	4,939	7,879
1st Lieutenant	11,393	17,567	18,213
Totals	20,676	25,821	29,298

Most of the promotion cut-back is in the ranks of captain and first lieutenant. In making the report the Air Force said the promotions indicated in the chart for FY '58 are included in the 30 June 1958 end strengths.

"These promotions," the report states "will not bring the assigned by grade strength up to requirements in the higher grades by end FY 1958." The assigned-by-grade requirements are shown in another chart which, together with additional details of Air Force personnel plans for the next 18 months, are told on pages 8 and 9.

The report has this to say about the difference between the assigned strength

ARMY PROMOTIONS, TOO, MAY SLUMP

There were reports at the Pentagon this week that Army officer promotions in the current fiscal year will be curtailed in comparison with previously announced plans.

It is reliably reported that the Defense Department has advised the Army not to build to its Congressionally authorized strength of 1,047,000, but to keep about 50,000 below that figure.

As a consequence, officer rolls are being cut (see related story this issue on accelerated release of Reserve officers) and planned slots are not being filled.

Some of the 20-year Reservists being separated ahead of schedule and prior to completion of category tours are on recommended lists for promotion, but will not receive higher rank before release from active service.

An indication that Army promotion programs are being revised is the fact that the Army has yet to submit data to Congress, similar to that provided by the Air Force, regarding fiscal '58 promotion forecasts.

Cut USMC Divs. & Wings

The Marine Corps will reduce the numerical strength of its three divisions and three air wings. A full Marine division now has 20,800 officers and men; there are 9,000 in an air wing.

First division to undergo the streamlining will be the 1st Marine Division, Camp Pendleton, Calif., under Maj. Gen. Robert O. Bare, USMC. The 3d Marine Air Wing, stationed at El Toro, Calif., will be the first aviation unit to slim down. The 3dMAW is led by Maj. Gen. Marion L. Dawson, USMC.

Headquarters declined to state when the division and wing would be cut back, standing pat on the phrase, "in the near future." Other units, HQMC said, will begin reorganizing "on a scheduled phase to provide minimum interference with combat readiness, and to utilize new equipment as it is developed and delivered."

The Marine Corps explained that the decision to reduce the personnel strength of its divisions and wings is the result of experiments and studies made since 1946. The new plan is "designed to meet requirements of war in the nuclear age,

Army Retains One Out of Five USAR Officers Who Complete 20 Years Duty

More than 1700 Army Reserve officers, who will have 20 years service—10 of them commissioned—by 30 June 1958 and whose categories expire before that date, will be released from active duty on an accelerated schedule. The Army has chosen 399 Reservists for retention.

A change in Army policy will see these Reservists separated at the end of the month following the month in which retirement qualification is earned.

Immediately affected by the changed policy are officers already (or by 30 April) qualified for retirement and who had been scheduled for release in May and June 1957 and during FY 1958.

Under the accelerated release schedule, these officers will be separated in April and May, 1957. The Army said each officer will be provided with individual notification of his newly established separation date and receive a minimum

$15-Million Rent Cut Wins First Round

The $15 million sub-standard quarters bill, providing rent cuts for approximately 36,000 military families, won approval of the Durham House Armed Services Subcommittee this week.

It now goes to the full Committee and appears to be headed for quick passage on the House floor.

A similar measure was passed by the House last year and also by the Senate. However, Senate changes—brought about by Defense Department urging—acted to prevent the measure from going to conference, and the bill died.

Representative Charles E. Bennett (D-Fla.) told THE JOURNAL this week that chances are excellent for the bill's passage this session. He said he believes the Defense Department will support the House version of the bill so that it "can be enacted this year substantially in the form as it passed the House last year."

The measure authorizes the Services to reduce rents for families occupying inadequate public quarters and permit them to pocket the difference between the lower rent and their quarters allowance. At present families assigned to substandard public quarters must forfeit their entire quarters allowances.

Approximately 21,300 Army families will benefit from the rent cut, as will 8,625 in the Air Force, 6,362 in the Navy and Marine Corps, 130 in the Coast Guard and 100 in the Public Health Service.

Speaking for the Defense Department, VAdm. James L. Holloway, Jr., USN, Chief of Naval Personnel, told the Subcommittee the bill is "an important and timely measure for the morale and welfare of our servicemen and their dependents."

$46 Million Housing Plans Take Shape; SAC Promises Improved Wherry Units

New military housing units costing $46 million are shaping up at four Army and Air Force bases.

At the same time, the Strategic Air Command has announced that SAC personnel "will profit by better housing" when the Air Force takes over Wherry housing units at some of its bases.

At Plattsburgh AFB, N. Y., bids are being sought on the $27.8 million Capehart housing project for the base. More than 1600 units will be constructed under the program.

At Fort Rucker, Ala., contracts totaling over $2 million have been entered into for 120 family-type Capehart housing units to be built on the Fort, and off-site facilities for all of the 600 units to be constructed at Rucker. Bids for constructing the additional 480 units will be opened on 29 Jan.

At Fort Carson, Colo., a contract is in the process of being awarded for the construction of 500 Capehart units to cost approximately $8 million. Units for non-commissioned officers total 441; for company grade officers, 38; for field grade officers, 18, and for general officers, three. Last year, work began at Carson on 440 family housing units valued at roughly $5.3 million.

At Fort Huachuca, Ariz., an $8 million Capehart housing construction contract has been signed. It calls for 575 units with 15 Sept 1958 set as the target date for completion of the project. Three hundred eighty of the houses will be for non-commissioned officers; 128 will be for company grade officers; 51 for field grade officers and 16 for senior officers. Officials at Ft. Huachuca said the signing of the new contract means that all of the 1315 housing units proposed in the $15 million construction program at the Fort are now started or well underway.

In connection with the Capehart program, the Armed Services are authorized to purchase Wherry housing at bases where the new Capehart homes are constructed. SAC said this week that improvements which will be made to the Wherry units, to bring them "up to the minimum standard required for public quarters," will include enlargement of the living areas, provision of better storage facilities, carports or garages, and garbage disposals.

Quarters which are modified and brought up to this standard will be assigned as government quarters for which

He said in many areas "both officers and enlisted men are living in converted barracks, in quonset huts and even in trailers" for which the Defense Department is required by law to charge the full quarters allowance.

Brig. Gen. G. R. Mather, USA, in a statement filed with the Subcommittee, said enactment of the bill will "alleviate the inequitable situations imposed upon members assigned to areas with housing shortages or where commuting distance to a community is excessive, thereby requiring them to utilize sub-standard quarters and to forfeit their entire rental allowances as an alternative to separation from their families."

He added that "separation from families and undesirable living conditions are deterrents to the retention of career personnel in the service and the Department of the Army desires and finds it profitable to keep families together and to provide them with suitable living quarters."

The Subcommittee again amended the Defense Department proposal to provide that all of the sub-standard housing must be brought up to proper standards or torn down within the next two years. The Department had asked for four years but Chairman Carl T. Durham (D-N.C.) said two years appears to be "enough" and if it isn't the department can ask for an extension.

the occupant will forfeit his quarters allowance. Those that cannot be brought up to this standard will be rented to the occupants at a rate comparable to civilian housing in the area.

Military families occupying either rented or assigned quarters will be provided all utility service and maintenance with the exception of telephone service.

The first negotiations for purchase of Wherry projects at SAC bases are expected to take place in the next six months.

Col. V. B. Culberson, USAF, SAC construction chief and the SAC family housing branch of the directorate of installations engineering set up the procedures to develop this program for the command and Colonel Culberson has announced that plans will be forwarded to the bases in the near future.

THE CHIEF'S SALUTE

General Nathan F. Twining, Air Force CoS, sent the following message to General Curtis E. LeMay, SAC C-in-C, upon the completion of the B-52 flight:

"Please convey my congratulations and thanks to the crews of the world-circling B-52's upon their arrival. Their accomplishment is a high mark in aviation history of which they can be justifiably proud.

"The global capabilities of the United States Air Force and in particular the Strategic Air Command have long been a matter of public record. When training operations of this nature are accomplished with such professional skill they reflect great credit upon the members of your command and the United States Air Force."

Second A-Sub Underway; "Bugs" Delayed Trial

Quietly and without fanfare, the Nation's second atomic submarine, USS Seawolf, began her sea trials on 21 January.

Her maiden voyage was delayed about three weeks because of "bugs" which developed in her sodium cooled power plant. The Nautilus' reactor is cooled by pressurized water. A highly corrosive element, sodium caused "leaks to develop in the Seawolf system." Navy and General Dynamics officials, however, felt that greater performance could be achieved by use of a sodium cooled reactor and were reluctant to shift to the water cooled system. The delayed sea trial of the Seawolf was begun after technical changes in the sodium-cooled system.

The $63 million sub is commanded by Cdr. Richard B. Laning, USN. She carries a crew of 102 officers and men.

As the Seawolf slipped to sea, the Navy announced that the Nautilus was to have her first fuel change since cruising more than 50,000 miles on atomic energy.

and particularly the requirements of the amphibious assault by helicopter as evolved by the Marine Corps and the Navy."

Stating that some of the features of the reorganization plans are still classified, HQMC said the new landing forces will be much lighter in terms of vehicles and equipment, much faster on their feet, and more powerful in terms of infantry weapons.

Other than stating that the combat units of the future will be "somewhat smaller," the Marine Corps refuses to discuss numbers.

The plan to cut back the size of divisions and wings will not mean an overall reduction in the strength of the Marine Corps. As the Corps envisions em-

Gen. Old Leads SAC B-52s on Global Flight

Maj. Gen. Archie J. Old, USAF, who won the DSC in WWII for leading the first shuttle-bomb raid from England to Russia and return and who led the 14 Oct. 1943 raid against the ball-bearing works at Schweinfurt, Germany, scored another historic achievement on 18 Jan. in leading three SAC B-52's on a non-stop round-the-world flight.

He has commanded the Fifteenth Air Force at March AFB, Calif., since July 1955.

On the global flight, General Old flew with a crew led by Lt. Col. James H. Morris, USAF, who was co-pilot on the first non-stop flight around the world in the B-50 Lucky Lady II in 1949. He was also aircraft commander on the lead plane in a formation of B-52's on a 32-hour flight covering 17,000 miles over the northern perimeter of North America including Greenland, North Pole and Alaska.

With General Old and Colonel Morris in crew, were the following crew members:

Pilot—Capt. Ernest E. Campbell.
Navigator—Capt. Rene M. Woog.
Navigator—Maj. Anthony P. Dzierski.
ECM Operator—Capt. Quintis L. Hinkley.

Tail Gunner—M/Sgt. Carl H. Ballew.
Crew Chief—T/Sgt. Donovan W. Higinbotham.

The other successful crews in Operation Power Flight were as follows:

Crew 22

Pilot—Capt. Jay G. Backman.
Navigator—Capt. Cyril H. Dingwell.
Navigator—Capt. Michael Stevens.

Navigator—Capt. Alfonso C. Toler.
ECM—Maj. Billie M. Beardley.
Tail Gunner—A/1c Eugene N. Preiss.
Crew Chief—T/Sgt. Albert Romero.

The flight of B-52's departed Castle AFB, Calif., at about 1600 on 16 Jan. and landed at 1019 PST on 18 Jan., covering 24,325 miles at an average speed of about 525 miles an hour. The planes were from the 93d Bomb Wing at Castle.

Four B-52's took off, but one landed in England.

ployment of forces in the future, swiftly moving, compact, self-sustaining units will bypass beach defenses and hit the enemy from the rear or flanks, depending upon the tactical situation. These hard-hitting forces, equipped with light-weight weapons and vehicles, will be backed up by heavy support units of the Fleet Marine Forces which will bring in the heavy stuff. Men who are culled out of the divisions will be absorbed by support units to add additional power to the second phase of an assault.

Headquarters emphasized that there is nothing radical in the shuffling of forces. The plans, HQMC said "are the most recent steps in our evolutionary process, in which we modernize while maintaining day to day readiness for combat, with or without nuclear weapons."

Keen Budget Action Foreseen On Hill

The President's invitation this week to the 85th Congress to cut the Federal Budget, if it could, appears likely to have a marked effect on consideration of the military budget for the next fiscal year.

There seems little prospect that any substantial reductions will be made in the President's $38 billion request, but considerable controversy already is being generated.

As the Symington Subcommittee on Airpower prepared this week to release a majority and minority report on hearings concluded before the November elections, Air Force advocates were known to be perturbed by the decision to cut back the 137 wing goal to 128 wings—possibly even fewer wings if the transfer of transport wings from TAC to MATS is taken into account.

Symington Subcommittee testimony shows that Air Force leaders, such as Chief of Staff Nathan F. Twining and SAC C-in-C Curtis E. LeMay were strongly in favor of at least several billion dollars more than the $17.6 billion expenditure projected for the Air Force in the year starting 1 July.

There is reason to believe that some efforts may be made to shift some money sought for the other Services to the Air Force.

The Army's spending budget for fiscal '58, as approved by President Eisenhower, is $9.1 billion, with $10.3 billion provided for the Navy.

The Administration's plan to cut the Army from 19 to 17 tactical divisions will be probed by the Armed Services and Appropriations Committees to determine the impact this will have on overall security. However, it is believed that the Administration's plan to build six Atomic Support Commands within the Army structure largely will offset criticism of the reduction in division strength.

There was reaction on Capitol Hill this week to the Navy's shipbuilding program, as Senator Jackson (D-Wash), a frequent critic of seapower plans, expressed the belief that the nuclear submarine program was not being pushed with adequate vigor.

In this connection, there is speculation that the Navy's 85,000 ton atomic carrier, which will cost between $300 and $400 million, will be a target for some criticism on Capitol Hill.

It is recalled that in past years, Chairman Cannon (D-Mo) of the House Appropriations Committee has questioned the need for large carriers. He has said in the past that money for these ships could better be spent on Air Force planes.

However, Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) of the House Armed Services Committee has been a strong partisan of an up-to-date surface fleet, and he can be expected to push for construction of the world's first atomic carrier. The ship would be powered by eight nuclear reactors.

Marine Corps friends on Capitol Hill are not enthused over the Administration's plan to hold the strength of the Corps at 200,000 officers and men, and some efforts are certain to be made in behalf of a Corps of perhaps 215,000 to 225,000.

Informed opinion, however, is that in the end the Congress will not attempt to raise the level of defense spending, barring a change for the worse in the international situation, since such action inevitably would pose the possibility of higher taxes.

But because the new budget does provide for a "new look" military posture, with fewer wings and divisions than previously thought necessary, searching questions will be asked by responsible Congressional groups.

Also, there will be close scrutiny of the Reserve Forces, highlighted by the start on 4 Feb. of hearings by a House Armed Services Subcommittee.

New Army CoS?

(JCS Chairman Change, P. 11)

General Maxwell D. Taylor's recent absence from the Pentagon and his subsequent trip to Puerto Rico to convalesce from an attack of sciatica has raised new speculation in the Army regarding a likely choice as his successor.

Top prospect for the job appears to be General Lyman L. Lemnitzer, USA, now Far East Commander.

It is expected, but not certain, that General Taylor will complete a two-year tour as Chief of Staff extending to August, but a new appointee may be named before that time.

General Lemnitzer, 57, originally commissioned in the Coast Artillery, was chosen specially by General Eisenhower to accompany General Mark W. Clark, USA-Ret., currently President of The Citadel in South Carolina, on the secret WWII submarine mission to North Africa in October 1942.

Since the end of WWII, General Lemnitzer has had repeated assignments which attracted the notice of Army Chief of Staff, SACCEUR and President Eisenhower.

He commanded an Airborne Division (the 11th in 1950), an Infantry Division (the 7th in Korea in 1951), and filled key Pentagon assignments, including duty as Director of the Office of Military Assistance (1949-50).

General Lemnitzer's assignment prior to his Far East service put him in close touch with latest weapons development. He was Deputy CoS for Plans and Research from August 1952 to March 1955, when he was chosen to head Army Forces in the Far East and the Eighth Army. In June of that year, he became C-in-C of the Far East Command and C-in-C of the United Nations Command.

Air National Guard Sticks By 11 Weeks

The Air Force apparently has no intention of requiring all new recruits in the Air National Guard to take six months active duty training.

At present, more than 90 per cent of Air National Guard units require 11 weeks of training for enlistment.

Expectation is that this will be virtually a 100 per cent proposition.

The result appears to be that in the States there will be two kinds of Guardsmen in terms of basic training—six month trained Army National Guardsmen and 11-week trained Air National Guardsmen.

National Guard Association officials say that this situation is certain to lead to confusion.

They want the Air Force program adopted across the board.

Practical Politics Seen Potent Weapon In Army-National Guard Training Fray

(A House Armed Services Subcommittee under Representative Overton Brooks (D-La) opens hearings 4 Feb. into Army plans effective 1 April, which will require that all recruits joining the National Guard take six months' active duty training. The National Guard Association will voice vigorous opposition to the Pentagon plan on Capitol Hill. These important Reserve Forces hearings will be reported fully in THE JOURNAL which not only will report significant developments in the open sessions, but also discuss behind the scenes maneuverings.)

THE National Guard Association, urged to employ "practical politics" to win its fight, is set to bombard Congress with sharp protests against the Army's decision requiring six months active duty training for all new members of the Guard.

The Army says its action is vital to the building of a ready-to-go reserve force.

The Guard contends that the six month requirement, which will not be imposed in the Air National Guard, threatens a loss of 100,000 in ground units and "drastically impairs" the effectiveness of the Guard's 27 divisions and specialized units.

The National Guard Association's alarm over the Pentagon decision (made by General Maxwell D. Taylor, Chief of Staff, and announced 14 Jan. by Secretary Wilber M. Brucker with the concurrence of Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson) was dramatized by an extraordinary council of State Adjutants General meeting in Washington, D. C.

At this emergency session, Maj. Gen. Ellard A. Walsh, outspoken president of the Association, met with newsmen to reassert publicly his opposition to the Army's edict. General Walsh said his group will make a strong fight before the Armed Services Committees to overturn the Army's action.

As a substitute, the Guard is advocating a compulsory basic training period of 11 weeks, as used in the Air National Guard, with an optional later time period of three or months to permit advanced training and specialists qualifications.

General Walsh, commenting that the Army has been able to sign only 40,000

SLASH GUARD DIVS.

National Guard leaders are fearful that the Administration's decision to reduce the Army's active tactical divisions from 19 to 17 will be followed by a decision to eliminate some of the 27 mobilization divisions of the Guard.

This concern was expressed by National Guard Association President Maj. Gen. Ellard Walsh and a number of Adjutants General at a Washington, D. C., meeting on 23 Jan.

General Walsh told a newsman that the Association had not yet received any specific word regarding cuts, but he complained that "often, we are the last to hear about such a decision."

youngsters for its six months reserve training program, told reporters it is unrealistic to expect the Guard to be able to get enough volunteers to maintain its strength in the face of the six month training requirements.

The President's budget provides for training 25,000 Guardsmen for six months during the year starting 1 July. The fiscal '57 quota for six months Guardsmen is 7,500.

Widely recognized as a politically powerful group, the Association is making no bones about its intention to use all the influence it can muster at the Capitol.

At the Washington meeting this week, the Association invited Representative Bray (R-Ind), a member of the Armed Services Committee, to speak at a luncheon session. A one-time reserve colonel who took a post-WWII drop to lieutenant colonel to head a National Guard tank unit, Mr. Bray charged that the "Pentagon is unalterably opposed to the Guard." The Indiana legislator said that "the Guard has received somewhat less than a friendly reception there."

Representative Bray called upon the assembled Adjutants General to "sell your governors and congressmen on the necessity of protecting the Guard." He commented that the Pentagon is "only one Congressional district," and suggested that the folks at home will have a lot to say on this matter.

Pentomic 101st Div.
Nears Final Test

The 101st Airborne Division, pioneering the Army's new Pentomic organizational concept at Ft. Campbell, Ky., is approaching the final phase of the four-month Troop Test JUMP LIGHT as it prepares for the concluding field exercise, SKY RAID, 26 through 31 Jan.

Named to participate in SKY RAID are the 101st Command and Control Battalion, the 326th Airborne Engineer Battalion, the 501st Airborne Signal Battalion, the 101st Airborne Support Group, and the 81st Rocket Battery. Tactical support will be provided by four of the division's five combat groups—the 327th, 501st, 502d and 506th, and Division artillery.

SKY RAID calls for an airborne introduction into the airhead by the units being tested; all other units will be entered administratively.

Earlier the division's 187th Airborne Infantry Combat Group completed the group testing phase, Operation MARKET II, at Ft. Bragg, N. C. For a report on that test see last week's JOURNAL, page 3.

Caribbean Command

Lt. Gen. Robert M. Montague, USA, has succeeded Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison, Jr., USA, as Commander in Chief of the Caribbean Command at Quarry Heights, C. Z.

The new Commander-in-Chief of the joint command, which includes Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force forces, recently returned from the Far East where he served as Commanding General of the 1st Corps in Korea.

General Montague twice previously served in important command and staff positions with joint military forces. In 1947 he commanded the Armed Forces Special Weapons Project at Sandia Base, N. Mex. and in 1951, he served as Director of Operations, Plans, Organization and Training of the European Command at Heidelberg, Germany.

Lt. Gen. Montague

New CofS At Stewart

Col. Robert McDonald Gray, USA, has assumed duties as Chief of Staff, Ft. Stewart, Ga. Formerly Public Information Officer at Ft. Bragg, N. C., he replaces Col. Wallace J. Nichols, USA, who departed last month for an assignment in Washington, D. C.

Commissioned at SETAF

Warrant Officer Richard L. Chandler, Firing Battery, 570th Field Artillery Missile Battalion (Corporal), Task Group Bravo of SETAF, was promoted to Second Lieutenant, U. S. Army, in a ceremony at his battalion headquarters at Caserma Ederle, Vicenza, Italy, recently.

Lt. Col. Leslie O. Doane, Battalion Commander, pinned on his gold second lieutenant bars and Maj. Alfred Roth, Battalion Executive Officer, administered the oath of office.

CHAPLAIN (LT. COL.) JAMES W. MAY, USAR, (left), professor of Theology at Emory University and President of the newly-chartered Atlanta Area Chapter of the U.S. Military Chaplain's Association, accepts the Chapter Charter from Chaplain (Col.) John F. Gaertner, Third United States Army Chaplain.

Leaves Goeppingen

Col. Paul G. Guthrie, USA, 8th Inf. Div. chief of staff since January 1956, has left Goeppingen, Germany, to become commandant of the USAREUR Military Police and Intelligence School.

Replacing him in the 8th Div. post is Col. Lynn D. Smith, former deputy G2, Seventh Army.

Colonel Guthrie, who established the Far East Command Intelligence School in 1951, takes to his new job a long record of experience in Army Intelligence which includes a period as deputy G2 for Army Forces Far East, an instructorship at the intelligence school at Fort Riley, Kans., and various intelligence duties in Washington, D. C.

Manpower Chiefs Get Army's Top Citation

Defense Department General Counsel Mansfield Sprague was preparing this week to take over new Pentagon duties as Assistant Secretary for Manpower, Personnel and Reserve.

He replaces Carter L. Burgess, who becomes President of TransWorld Airlines.

On 17 January, the Army saluted Mr. Burgess' service as Secretary Wilber M. Brucker presented the Reserve Colonel the Army Decoration for Exceptional Civilian Service. This is the Army's highest civilian award.

The citation:

"For his many outstanding contributions to National Defense, as Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower, Personnel and Reserve matters from September 24, 1954 to January 22, 1957. His exceptional knowledge, keen initiative and dynamic personal leadership culminated in the passage of vital legislation for all the Armed Services. His personal interest in and appreciation of the importance of the reserve components resulted in the passage of the Reserve Forces Act of 1955, thereby greatly improving their combat capability. All Army personnel were the beneficiaries of legislation which increased the pay schedule, improved retirement and survivors benefits, augmented the regular officer corps, and assured medical care for dependents. His devotion, skillful leadership and dedicated public service have reflected great credit upon himself and upon the Department of Defense."

Honor Lt. Col. Undercoffer

Lt. Col. Charles E. Undercoffer, well known to educators, exhibition officials, and others in Chicago through his activities as special projects officer for Fifth Army military personnel procurement, has been awarded the Army Commendation Ribbon for outstanding services. The presentation was made by Lt. Gen. William H. Arnold, Fifth Army Commander. Colonel Undercoffer was leaving the Army headquarters for appointment to the Army Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

MCI Establishes New Course In Demolitions

The Marine Corps Institute has set up a new course entitled "Demolitions (13.10)" and is accepting enrollments.

Although designed primarily for combat engineers (MOS-1371), the course contributes to the MOS requirements for infantrymen with MOS' 0311, 0351 and 0369. The Marine Corps points out that in many combat situations, demolition experts are not always available when needed and that all Marines can benefit by a knowledge of demolitions.

The course is broken down into five lessons which require approximately 20 hours of study. "Demolitions" teaches the student how to handle and fire various explosives, charges and firing devices; the methods used to destroy equipment, supplies and structures; and the rules and regulations required to handle and store military explosives. In addition, the quality and classification of explosives are discussed.

Reservists will be given seven retirement points for completion of the course.

Multi-million dollar ram jet test facility at Curtiss-Wright Wood-Ridge

CURTISS-WRIGHT
RAM JETS
spearhead America's first-line defense

One of the world's most advanced jet engines, the Curtiss-Wright Ram Jet develops its greatest efficiency at speeds above 1800 miles per hour, and at very high altitudes. Since the announcement, in 1952, of Curtiss-Wright's development of the world's first supersonic ram jet to be successfully flown, the Company has intensified its work on longer range ram jets for piloted aircraft and guided missiles — powerplants that are of first rank importance in America's National Defense programs. Curtiss-Wright's giant ram jet test facility at Wood-Ridge sets the pace for America's ram jet progress.

In ram jets, rockets, turbojets, turboprops, Turbo Compounds and conventional piston engines — in power for every purpose — Curtiss-Wright maintains a continuing program of advanced research and development.

B/G Howe Goes To AMC From Sacramento AMA

Brig. Gen. John D. Howe, USAF, deputy commander of Sacramento, Calif., Air Materiel Area, will become Deputy Director of the Directorate of Maintenance Engineering at Headquarters, Air Materiel Command, 1 March. General E. W. Rawlings, USAF, Commander of AMC, announces.

General Howe will be replaced at Sacramento by Col. Herbert H. Tellman, USAF, now director of procurement and production for that air materiel area.

General Howe was at Air Force Headquarters, Washington, D. C., from August 1951, to August, 1954, and was Director of Maintenance Engineering in the office of the Deputy Chief of Staff, Materiel, from May, 1952, to August, 1954. The following month he was named Deputy Commander at Sacramento. General Howe has been awarded the Legion of Merit with one Oak Leaf Cluster and the Bronze Star Medal. He is rated a command pilot.

Colonel Tellman has been director of procurement and production at Sacramento since September, 1953.

The colonel served in England, the Middle East and the Pacific during World War II, and in the Far East in 1950-51. He is rated a command pilot. He has been awarded the Legion of Merit and the Philippine Legion of Honor.

F-102A On Alert

The 11th Fighter Interceptor squadron, 343d Fighter Group, Duluth Municipal Airport, Minn., has become the first Air Force squadron to assume alert commitments using the delta-wing supersonic Convair F-102A all-weather interceptor.

Men of the 11th, commanded by Lt. Col. Robert M. (Pappy) Myers, USAF, took over the alert duties following transition from F-89Ds.

Brig. Gen. Howe

AF Nurse Honored

Double honors have been awarded to Maj. Glenna L. Tippett, USAF, student at the Army Medical Service School, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.

The Air Force Commendation Ribbon was awarded for her services as charge nurse of the maternity ward at Bolling AFB Hospital, Washington, D. C., from 1954-56. In addition, she received notification of her promotion to the rank of major.

Major Tippett is a member of the 3273d Technical Training Squadron at the Brooke Army Medical Center installation. While assigned to this unit, both officers and enlisted personnel of the Air Force attend technical courses which present the latest techniques in military medical procedures. She is studying advanced nursing administration.

COL. EDWARD G. LANSDALE, USAF, (second from left) is awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for "exceptionally meritorious service" as Special Advisor to the Chief, Military Air Advisory Group, Indo-China. Left to right: Allen Dulles, Director Central Intelligence Agency; Colonel Lansdale; Lt. Gen. Charles P. Cabell, USAF, Deputy Director, and General Nathan F. Twining, Air Force Chief of Staff, who made the presentation.

Report on Planned Strength Foresees Loss of 200 Officers; 4-Stars For 2 More

Air Force general officers will be boosted to their top authorized strength during the next 18 months.

This is brought out in a report to Congress (see page one) which shows that promotion prospects will slack off during fiscal '58 and that the Air Force expects to lose 200 officers between 1 July 1957 and 1 July 1958.

Past, present and future personnel and promotion figures are outlined in the report, which is required by the Officer Grade Limitations Act to be submitted to the House and Senate Armed Services Committees at the beginning of each year.

The report notes that the Air Force expects to have 10 full Generals by 30 June 1958, two more than were on board on 1 January 1957; 28 three-star generals, five more than currently are on duty; 170 Major Generals, 15 more than the Air Force now has; and 240 Brigadier Generals, one more than the present number.

The planned strength gives the Air Force a total of 448 general officers on 30 June 1958—the maximum allowed by the OGLA—compared with 425 on active duty on 1 January of this year. The latter figure does not include six retired general officers who have been recalled to active duty.

The Air Force told the Congressional committees that 373 of the 425 general officers now on active duty are rated officers—365 on flying status and eight off flying status—and that 52 of the total number were non-rated as of 1 January 1957.

The over-all commissioned officer strengths for the past four fiscal years, the programmed strength in the current fiscal year—which ends on 30 June 1957, and the programmed strength for the coming fiscal year are shown in the following chart:

Fiscal Year	Beginning Strength	Gains	Losses	End Strength
'53	124,239	28,215	25,685	126,769
'54	126,769	20,578	21,280	126,067
'55	126,067	20,020	12,904	133,183
'56	133,183	20,901	15,978	138,106
'57*	138,106	14,551	14,957	137,700
'58*	137,700	13,470	13,670	137,500

MORE TIME IN GRADE FOR CAPTAINS

Six months will be added to the minimum-time-in-grade required for consideration for promotion to major in the Air Force during Fiscal Year 1958.

In its annual personnel report to the Congress, Headquarters USAF said minimum-time-in-grade requirements for all other ranks will remain unchanged. They are 36 months for promotion to colonel, 48 months for promotion to lieutenant colonel, 36 months for promotion to captain and 18 months for promotion to first lieutenant.

Captains considered for promotion to major at the present time must have spent at least 54 months in grade. Under the temporary promotion criteria established for the new fiscal year, beginning 1 July 1957, they will have to have at least 60 months in the grade of captain.

The Air Force noted, however, that "actual time in grade of officers selected for promotion exceeds this criteria."

Gen. Kuter, FEAF, Move To Hawaii by 1 July

The Far East Air Forces will move to Hawaii by 1 July, and Fifth Air Force Headquarters, presently at Moriyama Air Station, will then move to FEAF's present location at Fuchu Air Station.

The moves are steps in the implementation of the Defense Department plan for consolidating the Pacific and Far East Command. FEAF will become the air component of the expanded Pacific Command under Admiral Felix B. Stump, USN at Pearl Harbor. Until the move has been completed, FEAF Commander, General Laurence S. Kuter, will maintain his headquarters at the present location at Fuchu.

The Fifth Air Force, commanded by Lt. Gen. Frederick H. Smith, Jr., USAF, will move to Fuchu to permit the relocation to Moriyama of various Air Force units in that area.

and the needed strength in each grade: "Recognizing the necessity for a continuing opportunity for advancement, the difference between assigned strength and requirement will be phased over a period of years. Although this procedure will cause many officers to perform duties for a few years in grades which are lower than those required for the positions being filled, this phasing is necessary in view of the planned leveling off in the commissioned officer strength and the fact that retirements will not provide relief in the higher grades for some years to come."

"Through such a plan of extending the time, over which these allowable promotions may be accomplished, to coincide with the time that retirements are expected to provide vacancies, a continuing promotion plan will be possible, thus providing continuing career opportunity and incentive."

"The number of promotions allowable in any one year, under this planned phasing, is necessarily limited; therefore, it is possible to screen carefully and consequently promote the most effective officers."

Honor Fursty Officers

Awards have been presented to three airmen recently at Furstenfeldbruck Air Base, Germany.

Capt. Robert L. McCracken, USAF, received the commendation ribbon for his superior supervision and cooperation over his instructors and recipient student personnel of the Mutual Defense Assistance Pact training program, as Flight Commander, 7330th Pilot Training Group (MDAP).

Capt. Harold C. McCutchan, USAF, was awarded the commendation ribbon for his conscientiousness and excellent judgment in the fields of Veterinary Medicine and Environmental Sanitation at Laon Air Base, France.

T/Sgt. Thomas C. Mickey, USAF, received a first oak leaf cluster for the commendation ribbon for meritorious in his job as NCOIC, Appropriation Section, Budget and Accounting Division, 7330th Flying Training Wing (MDAP) and USAFE Training Headquarters, Provost.

Presentations were made in ceremonies held in the Base Commander's office by Col. Mark H. Vintzant, Jr., USAF.

2d AF Cuts Accidents

By reducing their aircraft accident rate nearly 40 per cent during the past year, SAC's Second Air Force has established an all-time safety record according to its commander, Maj. Gen. George W. Mundy, USAF.

He said the 1956 report showed that the accident rate was reduced 6.5 accidents per 100,000 hours in the air.

Twelve Second Air Force bomb wings possessed accident-free records during 1956, according to Col. Carlton L. Lee, USAF, Director of Safety. At three of the bases, Little Rock AFB, Ark., Pinecastle AFB, Fla., and Homestead AFB, Fla., flight crews posted approximately 45,000,000 miles of accident-free flying. In addition to the dozen bomb wings, 11 support units in the Second also achieved perfect safety marks.

ADC Staff Chaplains At Annual Conference

Air Defense Command Staff Chaplains were in Colorado Springs, Colo., this week for the Third Annual Chaplains Conference.

Chaplain (Maj. Gen.) Charles I. Carpenter, Air Force Chief of Chaplains, was principal speaker.

The four-day conference was monitored by Chaplain (Col.) William W. Sissel, Command Chaplain at Headquarters ADC. He was assisted by Chaplain (Col.) Paul C. Potter of Colorado Springs, who is a Mobilization Assignee at ADC Headquarters.

A special guest at the ADC conference was Father Duane Theobald, Colorado Springs Church of the Divine Redeemer Parish, who is the Catholic auxiliary civilian chaplain at Ent AFB. Maj. E. V. Johnson, Protestant chaplain at Ent, also was in attendance.

Others attending the conference were Chaplains Lt. Col. Joseph D. Andrew, EADF; Lt. Col. Henry C. Bristow, 26th Air Div.; Lt. Col. John P. Duggan and Maj. Joseph P. Casey, 30th Air Div.; Maj. Robert S. Goshorn, 32d Air Div.; Maj. Clayton H. Stowe, 35th Air Div.; Maj. Claude L. Chilton, 37th Air Div.; Capt. Arthur W. Leroux and 1st Lt. Frank G. Kelly, 58th Air Div.; and Capt. Stanley B. Webster, 85th Air Div.

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Thomas F. Shea of Central Air Defense Force headed a contingent from his command including Chaplains: Maj. Arthur E. K. Brenner, 20th Air Div.; Capt. Frank H. Noll, 29th Air Div.; Maj. Henry A. Foss, 31st Air Div.; Maj. William E. Rone, 33d Air Div.; Maj. LeRoy Henry, 34th Air Div.

Conferees attending from the Western Air Defense Force included Chaplains: Lt. Col. Glen C. Shaffer, WADF Chaplain; Maj. Ashely D. Jameson, 9th Air Div.; Maj. Joel E. Ross, 25th Air Div.; Maj. Everett D. Penrod, 27th Air Div.; and Maj. Orvil T. Unger, 28th Air Div. Chaplain (Capt.) Richard A. Logan, 4750th Air Base Group, Vincent AFB, Ariz.

INCREASE OF REGULARS

Here's the projected officer strength of the Air Force, rank by rank, for 30 June 1958. The figures show that slightly more than one-third of the officers will be Regulars as of that date, almost twice as many as at present.

Rank	Regular	Non-Regular	Total
General	436	12	448
Colonel	4,255	596	4,851
Lt. Colonel	6,131	4,016	10,147
Major	8,713	14,549	23,262
Captain	18,330	26,443	44,773
1st Lieutenant	10,621	29,649	40,270
2d Lieutenant	1,500	12,249	13,749

...before the button

Four...three...two...one...Fire! a tense finger pushes a button. WHOOSH... and a fiery missile unerringly heads for its target. It worked!

Of course, it had to work. In atomic warfare there's no second chance. Farnsworth, a division of International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation, developed the uncanny electronic test equipment that knows—before the button is pushed. This not only avoids costly mis-fires or missed targets—it actually safeguards our very lives.

This is another answer supplied by Farnsworth Electronics Company, where scientists and engineers of many related skills are applying the vast experience and facilities of IT&T to solve many complex problems in the fields of electronics and communications for industry and the military.

SAC Leads The Way. The Strategic Air Command has won for the Air Force great national acclaim on the basis of the thrilling 45 hour 19 minute around the world flight by the refueled B-52 bombers under the command of Maj. Gen. Archie J. Old, jr., USAF, commander of the Fifteenth Air Force.

Daily newspapers and news magazines have pointed out the significance of this achievement in terms of SAC's ability to strike anywhere on the globe and return to home port—a feat of comforting importance in terms of retaliatory power.

What has not been emphasized has been SAC's demonstration of what eventually can be done by peacetime passenger and cargo air lines. With all of the world within a day's delivery time of any place else on the planet the commercial possibilities are unlimited.

To further emphasize SAC's accomplishment one can ponder on the statement made by Lt. Col. James H. Morris, lead pilot on the B-52 flight, that the 'round the world flight could have been accomplished in five hours less with suitable refueling aircraft. He contended that with KC-97s refueling there was a vast amount of time lost in descending and deaccelerating to meet the refueling planes. With jet refueling planes, he said, the flight could have been made in five hours less.

The importance of the flight to both military and civilian aircraft is enormous. It demonstrates beyond a doubt, the contribution of military aircraft to world-wide communication.

Better Defense for Less Money. The February issue of the Reader's Digest, now on the newsstands, carries to its large reading public the idea that the raising of military standards of living would reduce the current costly turnover in trained manpower and save the government millions of dollars.

"In an age of unprecedented prosperity," write Francis and Katharine Drake, "we are imposing on our servicemen, and on their families, hand-to-mouth living conditions which would not be tolerated in civilian life." In the past 15 years, industrial wages have risen more than 300 per cent, the smaller service pay checks only 55 per cent.

To make the service more attractive, the Drakes recommend pay raises of up to 50 per cent based on skill, not rank; more generous living allowances for "hardship stations"; more adequate housing; and an increase rather than a reduction in the variety of merchandise available at low cost through post commissaries.

"During the past three-year period," says the article, "the Army turnover has been nearly 100 per cent, the Navy (manned by volunteers) 94 per cent, while the Air Force, which shoulders the critical brunt of maintaining world peace, has been losing 90 out of every 100 of its highest-trained first-hitch volunteers."

This means that in the Air Force alone, 226,000 of its 900,000 men must be held in the Training Command thus weakening our effective fighting force by that much. Even such a vast training force is not enough as the Strategic Air Command alone reports it could put 500 more planes in combat commission if trained crews were available.

If these trained men could be kept in service, Gen. Emmett O'Donnell, Chief of Personnel of the Air Force, estimates strength of the Air Force could be cut 10 to 15 per cent and "We could be more effective."

PX Privileges. Another voice has been added to the protests against the proposal to extend post exchange privileges to help Service families in the lower grades. The National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers has told the House Armed Services Committee that it will oppose the expansion of the Armed Services Exchange Services operation.

Louis Rothschild, NARCF executive director, says that his association is keenly interested in the "competition which arises from post exchanges in the domestic market."

Mr. Rothschild cites the proposed raise in the limit of white shirts from $3.00 to $3.50. He seems to be alarmed at such an increase. Yet one wonders what quality of shirt a Service officer can buy at $3.50. Can it be of high enough quality to endanger the "better shops"? In fact, can it be good enough to supply him with what he wants and needs?

The whole argument seems insufficient to deter the Department from its determination to expand the PX facilities. We believe that the expansion should be much greater than the Department has proposed.

QUOTES FROM THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago (25 Jan. 1947)—The second Navy fighter of the Ryan Fireball Series, the XF2R-1, using a gas turbine in front to provide power for its conventional propeller, and a jet unit for additional boost in the tail, has taken its place among the most advanced Naval experimental aircraft and has been flying successfully for more than a month.

50 Years Ago (26 Jan. 1907)—Various arguments have been made in favor of compulsory military training, but none more novel than that advanced by Professor Schutze, of the University of Chicago, who holds that such service would tend to improve American manners. The rich, who tend to be snobs, says the Professor, forced to mix on equal terms with less fortunate countrymen would soon get over their haughtiness.

90 Years Ago (26 Jan. 1867)—Despite our pacific Monroe Doctrines and theories of isolation from European quarrels, it daily becomes more manifest that we are by no means safe from having a foreign war pushed upon us without our will.

READERS' VIEWS

(Letters to the Editor must have author's name and address, but name will be omitted on publication if writer so states. Longer letters may be extracted for publication.)

Praise From SAC Editor, THE JOURNAL:

THE ARMY NAVY AIR FORCE JOURNAL is to be congratulated both on its policy against accepting outright industrial recruitment advertising and the continuing editorial support given the vital problem of retention of skilled personnel in the Air Force. This headquarters is particularly appreciative of the generous coverage given material concerning career incentives and overall plans to improve the service career.

As Air Force equipment and techniques of operation become increasingly complicated, the effectiveness of the fighting force will be even more dependent on retention of technical specialists. As this bears directly on national security, THE JOURNAL's dedication to the best interest of the services will in my opinion become increasingly significant.

Save The Exchanges Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Your reporting of the Defense Department's attempt to increase the number of items sold at Post Exchanges is very much appreciated.

It is deplorable that the National Retail Dry Goods Association is attempting to throw a roadblock in the legislative path of the measure. It might be a good idea if Mr. John C. Hazen, the Association VP for Government Affairs, took a good look at the situation before he went off half-cocked. How he can say that the items asked for do not meet the criterion of "convenience and necessity" is beyond my powers of deduction. But let it lie. Carping critics seem to be an occupational hazard connected with Service life.

I'd like to suggest that Mr. Hazen be forced to make all his future purchases at PXs. I wonder what his reaction to this suggestion would be when he found that he was denied the right to have goods and items which are common to the high standards of American life.

SERVICE WIFE

Gag The Navy Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The "Hopeful Captain's" letter in your 12 Jan issue, together with the front-page article telling about new efforts to obtain the approval of Congress for a $15 million rent cut for those of us occupying inadequate quarters, spurs me to make a suggestion which may be considered out of keeping with our glorious policies of unification.

I recommend that the Navy be gagged this time. From JOURNAL reports last year, it was apparent that the plan fell short of enactment largely because the Navy decided to buck the issue. Perhaps if one of the other Services is put in charge of the measure this year we will see the proposal go over the hurdles without mishap.

If a Service is known to be out of sympathy with a Defense Department plan, there's no good reason for placing that service in charge of Congressional presentation. That's like arming a submarine with BB guns.

A "SISTER" SERVICE

Dual Compensation Editor, THE JOURNAL:

In a recent issue you stated that a plan to wipe out or at least ease the dual compensation statutes has a "fighting chance" in the new Congress. I, for one, hope that you were being unduly pessimistic.

For many years now such proposals have been making the Congressional rounds, and everyone—the Congress, the Pentagon, the various retired groups—has gone on record in favor of plans to eliminate these burdensome laws or to make them less restrictive. In short, such proposals have had a "fighting chance" for a longer period than most of us care to acknowledge, and we have reached the point where no Congressional action will boost our morale unless it is so definite that it assures passage in at least one house with the distinct possibility of a favorable vote in the other chamber.

This is not to disparage the role which THE JOURNAL has played in keeping the issue before the Pentagon and the Congress, but I should like to see a stronger report on the subject.

I believe history already has demonstrated that a "fighting chance" in this instance at least, is not enough.

COLONEL, USA-RET

PX Extends Customer Comments Nationwide

Customer Comments, the exchange program that gives every customer a voice in exchange operation, is being extended nationwide. Maj. Gen. Harlan C. Parks, USAF, recently appointed Chief of the Army and Air Force Exchange Service, disclosed at a meeting with the Service journal editors in Washington, D. C.

"I am highly enthusiastic about this program," General Parks stated. "The only way we can give our exchange customers better service is to determine exactly what they want from us. This Customer Comments Program encourages every customer to give local exchange management and the headquarters of the Exchange Service his views on exchange operation."

The program is quite simple. Specially designed Customer Comments boxes are placed in heavy traffic areas in exchange outlets. A poster invites the customer to write out his ideas or suggestions and place them in the box.

The comments are studied by local, regional and Headquarters exchange management to determine areas where improvements can be made. This represents the first time in exchange history that the customers have been given such a direct means of expressing their desires and recommendations on the exchange service.

Services Donate Excess Clothes To Hungarians

The Armed Forces will donate more than $1.8 million worth of excess clothing and supplies to Hungarian freedom fighters.

The Defense Department, in cooperation with the General Services Administration, ordered the transfer of the items to the International Cooperation Administration to assist the President's Committee for Hungarian Refugee Relief.

Army Develops 25-in-1 Ration For USMC; To Be Used During Amphibious Assaults

A NEW type of ration—concocted to dovetail with the Marine Corps "vertical envelopment" method of waging war—soon will be introduced into the Corps' Supply System.

Known officially as "Meal, 25-in-1, Landing Force," the ration was developed at Marine Corps request by the Army Food and Container Service Institute, Chicago, Ill.

In submitting specifications to the Institute, Marine Corps Headquarters explained that it wanted to get hot food to the troops as quickly as possible during the early stages of an amphibious operation. "Experience has shown that in an amphibious operation there exists a period during which this ration requirement can not be met by existing precooked operational rations, and during which it is not feasible for tactical or logistical reasons to provide bulky 'B' rations," HQMC stated.

A Headquarters spokesman told The Journal that the new 25-in-1 ration is not intended as a substitute for existing rations. It will be used for the interim feeding of combat troops between the time they assault a position and the time they secure the area.

In other words, combat-Marines will carry the lightweight "C" rations with them into battle. When the tactical situation is relatively stabilized, the new 25-in-1 will be delivered. When the combat situation is well in hand, regular hot meals ("B" rations) will be served.

The 25-in-1 ration has been packaged for aerial delivery and has been kept to minimum size to facilitate easy handling. The complete pack, food and container, weighs slightly less than 50 pounds. Delivery of the 25-in-1 pack will eliminate the need for each man to carry personal rations with him for the duration of a combat situation. In certain situations, during a patrol, for example, "C" rations will continue to be used.

Acceptance of the 25-in-1 package also eases many of the supply headaches of the past. In previous operations, vast quantities of rations had to be loaded from ships, ration dumps had to be set up and the rations had to be sorted. These operations are virtually eliminated by the new feeding plan.

In addition, the Landing Force Meal incorporates many features which are considered essential military characteristics. It can be used under all climatic conditions. The ration has been designed to be stable for two years in temperatures ranging from minus 80 degrees to plus 160 degrees Fahrenheit and relative humidity from 10 to 90 per cent. The pack is fire, water, insect and fungus proof and would be unaffected by total immersion in three feet of salt or fresh water for two hours.

The contents of the pack have been reduced to essentials; no non-food items have been included.

In its request for development, the Marine Corps specified that all foods should be available in separate cans—meat in one can and various vegetables in separate cans. This requirement was made to avoid unpopular hash and stew items which make up "C" rations.

Because the food stuffs contained in the ration are partially or completely cooked, complete meals can be heated with a minimum of equipment. All items are moderately preseasoned. Each package, however, contains additional season-

Army Navy Air Force Journal 11
26 Jan. 1957 (Vol. 94, P. 639)

ing to allow individuals to spice the meals to their taste.

One pack contains complete separate meals for about 25 men. A ration is defined as "food for one man for one day."

A combination of a breakfast and two other meals provides an individual with approximately 3,600 calories a day.

Here are sample menus:

BREAKFAST NO. 5

Kadota Figs
Corn-Soya and Wheat Cereal
Ham and Eggs
Bread Margarine
Strawberry Jam
Coffee Cocoa
Milk Sugar

DINNER NO. 2

Roast Beef Tomatoes
Mashed Potatoes Margarine
Bread Pineapple-Rice Pudding
Candy Corn Coffee
Milk Sugar
Pepper Salt

Although the Marine Corps has determined the Institute pack acceptable to its needs, details are being worked out by the General Equipment Section of the Marine Corps Development Center, Quantico, Va. HQMC emphasized that it may be necessary to modify some of the items in the 25-in-1 pack.

Eventually, the Corps plans to make use of the new ration in Fleet Marine Force maneuvers.

memo :

THE AIR FORCE APPARENTLY IS COUNTING on one of its officers being named JCS Chairman. Promotion plans for fiscal '58 project a total of 10 four-star officers on active duty; that compares with 8 at present. One of the new four-star billets would be for the JCS Chairman. A possibility for the second four-star assignment is the post of C-in-C of U. S. Air Forces Europe. The comparable job in the Far East is a four-star billet. In Europe, Air Force Lt. Gen. Tunner's opposite Army number is four-star General Hodes of the Army.

THE MARINE CORPS MAY DEVISE an atomic designation for some of its Fleet Marine Force units in connection with the disclosure of plans to reorganize its divisions and air wings. The Army, as reported in the President's budget, will create six Atomic Support Commands, probably about the size of a third of a standard infantry division each, while at the same time cutting the size of infantry, armored and airborne divisions. THE MARINES ARE EAGER to receive strong recognition in development of war plans for their utilization as "fire brigade" forces that can move into a situation swiftly and administer harsh punishment to an enemy, as necessary. With the Army, Navy and Air Force all stressing a dual atomic/conventional capability to provide punishment to fit the crime, the Marine Corps can be expected to follow suit.

SECURITY RESTRICTIONS which thwarted the Army's desire to tell the public and its own soldiers more details about plans to reorganize all combat divisions on the Pentomic concept have hit the Marine Corps also. Belief is that the White House itself has put the Pentagon on sharp notice that little is to be said—at least for the present—about tactical reorganizations. The Marine Corps this week declined even to say whether or not it would modify its divisions from three regiments to a five-sided structure, as the Army is doing. The Marines have been considering return to a square division set-up during the past several years. But what the fate of that study is, USMC Headquarters refuses to divulge—presumably because of instructions from higher authority.

THE ARMY'S ATOMIC SUPPORT COMMANDS apparently are to be commanded by two-star officers. The prototype 6000-man unit, SETAF, at Verona, Italy, was activated under Maj. Gen. (then Brig. Gen.) John Michaelis, USA, now head of Army Legislative Liaison. His successor, Brig. Gen. Harvey Fischer, USA, recently was promoted to temporary major general. SUCH AN UPGRADING of a billet must have DoD and White House approval. Thus, while the Army will lose two M/G spots in the loss of two divisions, it may gain five more two-star assignments in the Atomic Support Commands.

THE CIVILIAN AIRLINES are applying pressure on Capitol Hill and at the Defense Dept. to force substantial reductions in the domestic military airlift in connection with DoD's decision to create a single Manager Agency for air transport. Faced with the necessity of cutting back its combat wing strength, the Air Force is in a weakened position to resist the new attacks.

CHIEF OF STAFF TWINING'S TESTIMONY on the fiscal '58 military budget, which scraps the 137-wing target in favor of a more economical goal of 128 wings, will be watched closely. Many think his Capitol appearances before the Appropriations Committees will be of major significance in connection with the choice of a new JCS Chairman. ADMIRAL RADFORD WILL COMPLETE four years service as the Nation's top-ranking officer on active duty in August. General Twining currently is widely considered top prospect to be the first Air Force officer to head the JCS. Should he sound off in strong terms against the new budget, however, his military future could be jeopardized. BEST GUESS is that General Twining will tell the Congressional Committee that yes the Air Force feels an urgent need for at least 137 wings, but it recognizes the fact that other factors—beyond the Air Force's responsibility—must be taken into consideration. In the event that President Eisenhower should decide to bypass General Twining for the JCS Chairmanship, there is speculation that General Partridge of CONAD or General Kuter of the Far East Air Forces might be chosen. Both Generals Partridge and Kuter are seen headed for bigger jobs, particularly in view of their experience in Inter Service assignments. GENERAL KUTER, just before WWII, was involved in some of the pioneering unification studies, later was made the first head of MATS, the first unified operation.

ATOMIC TRAINING for Army Reservists is being accelerated. In Chicago, the first Atomic Special Weapons Instruction Class has been organized by Lt. Gen. William H. Arnold, USA, Fifth Army CG. with Col. Joe Ahee, USA, in charge, to give 87 hours of instruction to selected Reserve officers.

AIR FORCE MANPOWER PROBLEMS, already formidable, will be aggravated during the next fiscal year, unless there's a significant improvement in the turnover problem. The Air Force, now authorized 936,000 military personnel, but with an actual strength of about 915,000, is given spaces for 925,000 officers and airmen in the fiscal '58 budget. ON TOP OF THE CUT in military strength, the Air Force, alone of the Services, will be confronted with a requirement to slash civilian employment. The fiscal '58 budget authorizes 337,695 average civilian personnel strength; that compares with an actual force level of 352,485 last month. During the past several years, the Air Force has been able to reduce military manpower by wider use of civilians; now it will lose almost 15,000 civilians. The Army will be cut about 1000 civilians; the Navy gains almost 5000.

THE AVERAGE AIR FORCE OFFICER is 31.5 years old, with second lieutenants 23.2 and general officers 48.5. The average colonel is 42.7 years of age, followed by lieutenant colonel, 40.6; major, 37.7; captain, 33.9 and first lieutenant, 26.2.

PROMOTIONS TO HIGHER RANKS are getting tougher and tougher in the Air Force. It's estimated that only 1 out of 24 eligible lieutenant colonels will be able to win eagles during the next fiscal year, compared to 1 out of 19 in FY '56 and 1 out of 22.4 this year. For lieutenant colonel, the selection ratio will go up from 1 out of 15.2 eligibles to 1 out of 17.5.

GENERAL LEE ON BOARD OF CHAMBER

Brig. Gen. William L. Lee, USAF, Commander of the 3320th Technical Training Wing, at Amarillo AFB, Tex., has been honored by the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce by being appointed to the Board of Directors of that organization.

General Lee, who took over command at Amarillo in late October, formerly was commander of the 13th Air Force in the Philippines, where he was known as the "Father of the Philippine Air Force."

Along with being selected to the Board of Directors he was made a member of the Military Affairs and Aviation Committee.

Ordnance Association

Aids Army Relief Soc.

Col. Leo A. Codd, USAR, executive vice-president of the American Ordnance Association has presented a check for $4,272.40 from the AOA to the Army Relief Society.

Maj. Gen. Carroll H. Deitrick, USA, Commanding General of Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., accepted the check on behalf of the AOS.

The money represented the amount after expenses, collected from the more than 4000 association members from all parts of the nation who attended the 38th annual meeting of the AOA held at Aberdeen 4 Oct. 1956.

The annual meetings of the American Ordnance Association are held at the Proving Ground every third year, as they alternate between the Army, Navy, and the Air Force. The funds collected from the AOA members, in excess of expenses, are donated to a relief society benefiting that particular branch of the service.

Army Retains One Out of Five Reserves Who Complete 20 Years' Service warning period of 60 days (90 days for officers overseas) prior to actual separation.

As an exception to this separation schedule, officers accompanied by dependent children attending school may elect to remain on active duty until the end of the month in which the school year is completed or, if the officer is serving overseas, at the end of the month following the month in which the school year is completed. The Army added that a later announcement will be made of separation phasing for officers whose term categories expire in fiscal year 1959 who have attained retirement eligibility or will qualify prior to the expiration of their category.

Officers electing to request retirement upon separation will do so under the provisions of paragraph 27, AR 635-130. This is voluntary on the part of the individual officer. Officers being separated who are Warrant Officers of the Regular Army have the option of continued active duty in that status.

FILES OF OVER 2100 Reserve officers on active duty who are now or who become eligible for Title II retirement during Fiscal Year 1958 and whose categories expire during Fiscal Year 1958, or who are serving on active duty under the "indefinite" program were reviewed.

The board selected 399 officers for further retention on active duty—98 on the basis of their outstanding records. The remaining 301 officers were selected either as critical specialists, to maintain branch grade structure, or as Regular Army Augmentation prospects.

Officers selected on the "outstanding" basis may expect to remain on active duty to complete a career paralleling that of Regular Officers. Normally, subject to the needs of the service and their continued high standards of performance, such officers may expect to be retained on active duty until their removal from an active status in the Reserve is mandatory under the provisions of the Reserve Officer Personnel Act of 1954, according to a Pentagon statement.

Officers selected for further retention on active duty as critical specialists or to maintain branch grade structure may expect to remain on active duty so long as a need for their services exists. The need for retention of such officers will be reviewed annually and should changes in the future requirements of the Active Army require the release from active duty of any of these officers, they will be afforded a minimum of six months prior notification of their release.

OFFICERS SELECTED FOR RETENTION on active duty as Regular Army Augmentation Prospects, who apply or have applied for Regular Army appointment, will be retained on active duty only so long as they remain eligible for further consideration for appointment in the Regular Army, or are not finally selected for Regular Army appointment. Every effort will be made to afford officers in this category timely notice of their release in the event release becomes necessary as a result of non-selection.

It is expected that all affected officers will be informed of their status prior to 1 February and offered an opportunity to volunteer for additional active duty.

Following are names of the Army officers who have been selected for retention beyond 20 years service. An asterisk (*) before an officer's name indicates he was chosen as "outstanding."

AG Officers Meet In Korea

KOREA—Every major U. S. Army unit in Korea was represented when the Eighth Army Replacement Depot was host to 40 AG officers who gathered at the EARD Officers' Club on the eve of Maj. Gen. Herbert M. Jones' assuming the helm of the Corps.

This was the first gathering of its kind and presented Mrs. Pugh with an engraved silver tray from the CCA ladies.

Mrs. Robert W. Porter, wife of the Commanding General of the 3d Armored Division was an honored guest. Mrs. C. L. Slaysman whose husband is CO of the 7th Tank battalion was chairman of hostesses for the day.

KMAG, ROK Army NCOs, Civilians Honor Col. Dyer

TAEGU, KOREA—Officials of two Armies and ROK Civilians gave Col. Fred C. Dyer, departing Senior G-4 Advisor, Second ROK Army, letters of appreciation for his activities while in Korea.

Lt. Gen. Choi Yong He, Commanding General, Second ROK Army presented Colonel Dyer with both an official and personal letter of appreciation.

Br. Gen. Charles H. Swartz, Senior KMAG Advisor Second ROK Army, presented the departing officer with a Certificate of Achievement on behalf of Maj. Gen. Carl F. Fritzsch, Chief KMAG. City Officials of Taegu awarded the Colonel a scroll of appreciation for his assistance to the City of Taegu.

The senior non-commissioned officers of Detachment "R" G-4 and technical services also presented a scroll which was signed by all of the non-commissioned officers. Colonel Dyer, who has been in the G-4 field for 17 years, has been reassigned to the Indiana Military District.

Lt. Col. Ashenfelder Named

HEIDELBERG, GERMANY—The Office of the Finance and Accounting Officer, USAREUR Headquarters, has announced appointment of Lt. Col. W. F. Ashenfelder, USA, as Deputy Chief of the Office of Finance and Accounting. He serves under Col. C. H. Miles, USA, who recently succeeded Col. M. B. Hale, USA, as OFAO Chief. Colonel Hale is now with the Office, Chief of Finance at Washington.

SERVICE FAMILY NOTES

SIDNEY BROCKMAN (left), 15-year-old Eagle Scout, son of Lt. Col. (MC, USA) and Mrs. Sidney Brockman, receiving the highest Scouting award, the Silver Explorer Medal, presented to him by RAdm. Harold M. Briggs, USN, Deputy Commandant of the Armed Forces College. The presentation was made just prior to the Brockman family's departure from Norfolk, for a tour of duty in Germany.

THE wives of the Joint Chiefs of Staff will be the honor guests at the 12 Feb. luncheon of the Women's Club of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces at the Ft. McNair Officers Club.

In the receiving line with Mrs. Robert P. Hollis, wife of the Commandant of the College, will be Mesdames Arthur W. Radford, Nathan F. Twining, Maxwell D. Taylor, Arleigh A. Burke and Randolph McC. Pate. Introductions will be made by Mrs. Russell D. Hale, president of the Club.

A group from the Gadsby Tavern Players, Alexandria, Va., will present "Recognition of Anastasia." The performance, which will be in costume, will be introduced by Mrs. Merrell Beebe.

Reservations for the luncheon may be made with Mrs. Carney G. Laslie, Jr., Club treasurer.

Belvoir OWC To Stage Fasching Ball

A Fasching costume ball, patterned on the pre-Lenten celebration in Germany, is planned by the Officers' Wives Club and the Engineer Mess at Ft. Belvoir, Va., for Saturday evening, 9 Feb., at the Specker Field House.

Wives of officers assigned to The Engineer School are in charge of arrangements, with Mrs. R. G. MacDonnell as chairman. Entertainment will include specialty numbers in keeping with the Fasching theme, featuring Ft. Belvoir talent.

Information and reservations are available by mailing a check ($2.00 per person) to Mrs. L. W. Correll, Quarters 33, Ft. Belvoir.

RECEPTION AT WALTER REED. Secretary of the Army and Mrs. Wilber M. Brucker are greeted by Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, USA, (L) Commanding General of Walter Reed Army Medical Center, as they go through the receiving line. Standing behind the Bruckers is Capt. Kenneth R. Wilson, USA, aide-de-camp to the Commanding General.

Generals' Wives Aid Families

Mrs. R. I. Hodes, wife of the Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Army, Europe, and Mrs. Clark L. Ruffner, wife of the Chief of MAAG at Bonn, recently assisted the American Catholic Ladies Guild of Berlin in the distribution of food to displaced families.

More than 450 needy families received food packages to insure a more plentiful Christmas.

Farewell To Kneussl

A farewell dinner dance, honoring Col. and Mrs. James K. Kneussl, was given at the Army-Navy Country Club, on the evening of 19 Jan., upon the occasion of Colonel Kneussl's early retirement.

Six new members were welcomed. They were Mesdames James V. Thompson, Henry B. Kunzig, Duncan Sinclair, James Hengate, Walter Johnson and Charles E. Davis.

Mrs. Tunner Urges Wives To Aid Community

FURSTENFELDBRUCK, GERMANY—Mrs. William H. Tunner, wife of the Commander, USAFE, has challenged Air Force Wives' Clubs to bring their members together to make a contribution to their community and to promote social and education advantages during their life in Europe.

Speaking to the Officers' Wives Club here, Mrs. Tunner emphasized that club welfare money can go a long way to help Americans as well as Germans. For example, she mentioned the Wiesbaden Club's granting of a $500 scholarship to a graduating high school senior as well as aid to a German old folks' home.

The enthusiasm, ingenuity and interest of the members are the only limits to an active program to encourage participation in club affairs, Mrs. Tunner said.

"If ten members are interested in starting a project, the Wives' Club should back them up," she added.

Welcoming newcomers who may be strange to the Air Force as well as to a foreign country is one of the most important purposes of a Wives' Club. Mrs. Tunner also encouraged wives to take advantage of opportunities to travel and to learn a second language.

Hostesses at the luncheon were Mrs. Phillip Poser, Mrs. R. L. Ramsay and Mrs. Harry Walker.

MRS. WILLIAM H. TUNNER, wife of Lt. Gen. William H. Tunner, Commander in Chief of U. S. Air Forces in Europe, greets Mrs. Mario Garuti at the Furstenfeldbruck Officers' Wives Club luncheon. Left to right, are: Mrs. Tunner, Mrs. Mark H. Vinzant, wife of Colonel Vinzant, and Mrs. Garuti.

Service Weddings and Engagements

CAPT. (USN) and Mrs. James W. Blanchard of Arlington, Va., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Patricia, to Lt(jg). Vaughn E. Wilson, Jr., USN, son of Mr. Wilson, sr., of Lubbock, Tex., and the late Mrs. Wilson.

Miss Blanchard is an alumna of the Holton-Arms School and Junior College and of the University of Maryland Branch at Naples, Italy. Lieutenant Wilson attended Texas Tech. and was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy.

A March wedding is planned.

COLUMBUS, GA.—Col. William Allen Harris, USA, Artillery Commander, Third Division, Ft. Oglethorpe, Ga., spoke recently at the Oglethorpe, George Walton and Button Gwinnett Chapters, Daughters of the American Revolution, in Columbus, Ga.

Colonel Harris spoke on "Great Americans Past and Present," stressing the importance of history as an inspiration to our present generation.

The Oglethorpe Chapter is the third oldest DAR unit in Georgia. The vice regent and former regent is the wife of Col. Thomas A. Austin, USA (Ret.). Mrs. Carl E. Frishy, who arranged for Colonel Harris' speech, is the wife of a retired major. Another past regent of the chapter is the widow of Col. K. S. Olson, who died as a Japanese prisoner of war. Other "Army members" of the chapter include Mrs. Joseph Stilwell, Jr., Mrs. William Aherne, Mrs. Philip D. Draper and Mrs. P. E. Gallagher. Colonel Harris' brother is Maj. Gen. Hunter Harris, Jr. USAF, FEAF, Japan.

Leavenworth DUSA Fund Aids Hospital

LEAVENWORTH, KAN.—Most recent contribution of the Ft. Leavenworth chapter of the Daughters of the U. S. Army is an intercom system, installed in the third-floor pediatric ward of the U. S. Army Hospital here. The Army Daughters, who administer the Hospital Emergency Fund, raise money for their charitable works through the preparation and sale of an Activities Calendar at the beginning of each scholastic year of the Command and General Staff College. Additionally, they sponsor a full-fledged Mardi Gras biennially, proceeds from which are added to the fund.

Many improvements in hospital facilities within the past year are credited to the Army Daughters—an air-conditioner in the surgical recovery ward, an Osterizer for the preparation of purees for special diets, air-conditioning and draperies to provide comfort and privacy in a maternity dining room, and the latest type of measuring device for new-born babies.

The Army Daughters have, for some time, sponsored a diaper service, as well, and are responsible for the cheerful animal figures which enliven the walls of the pediatric ward. Another project was the furnishing of a comfortable lounge for parents attending sick children.

The Chapter meets once a month for lunch and the discussion of current and future plans. This year's president is Mrs. Robert K. Hamilton. Vice president is Mrs. Joel B. Stephens, and Mrs. Benjamin Taylor is secretary, with Mrs. John O. Truby as treasurer.

EGLIN AFB, FLA. — "The March of Dimes" was the theme for the January luncheon of the O.W.C.

Mrs. William R. Stark, O.W.C. President, presented a check in the amount of over $1000 to Mr. John Strickland, County Treasurer for the "March of Dimes."

D C S/O Wives were the hostess group for this luncheon. Mrs. David M. Jones was general chairman with Mrs. Robert A. Elder and Mrs. Charles C. Woolwine as project co-chairman. Mrs. Maurice C. Horgan, Mrs. James A. Beebe, Mrs. Clyde Sims, and Mrs. Kenneth H. Hohlaus were committee members.

Among the guests at the luncheon was the Okaloosa County chairman of the "March of Dimes," Mrs. Bruce J. Dunkin, wife of M/Sgt. Dunkin of Eglin Air Force Base.

FORT DIX—A small corps of wives have contributed $1,550 to civilian and military charities and welfare in this area through operation of a spare-time "thrift shop" dealing principally in second-hand clothing and household "odds and ends." Largest contribution, a $1,000 check, went to the post community chest campaign, which further delegates troop donations to a variety of funds ranging from cancer to the Salvation Army. Other donations by the "thrift shop" were: $200 to nearby Deborah Sanitarium; $100 to the Salvation Army in Wrightstown; $100 in Thanksgiving and Christmas food baskets to needy families in the immediate area; $50 for toys for hospitalized children in this area; and $100 in foreign magazine subscriptions for the Fort Dix hospital.

In addition the shop contributed a quantity of clothing from its own stocks to Korean and Hungarian relief movements. Mrs. Joseph W. Cooch, supervisor of the shop and wife of a lieutenant colonel at Dix, said that all profit from the enterprise is turned over to charity.

CHURCH HONORS W.O.

A Fort Chaffee, Ark., warrant officer who spends his off-duty hours working for his church was honored by Fort Smith, Ark., church members prior to his departure for a new assignment.

CWO Joseph V. Stark, USA, who was assistant finance officer at Chaffee, was given a testimonial dinner by members of the Acolyte Order of St. John's Episcopal Church in appreciation of the work he has done for the order during the past three years.

Starting with eight boys in 1953, Mr. Stark trained 27 members for altar service in the three years. He is now attending the Finance School at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., and will go to Germany following his graduation.

FORT SILL, OKLA. — Responding to President Eisenhower's appeal to the American people to raise money for the Hungarian Relief Fund, Fort Sill has contributed approximately $2,329 to the Comanche County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

The money was collected from the sale of tickets to the "Freedom Bowl" football game, a fund-raising contest matching service gridiron teams from Fort Sill and Fort Jackson, S. C. All of the money will be used to aid Hungarians.

The money collected at Fort Sill was part of the total of $4,000 raised by the Lawton-Fort Sill area. The Army Aviation Unit Training Command sold $200 worth of tickets out of a possible $200, while the 17th Field Artillery Group sold $692 worth out of a possible $730.

PORTSMOUTH AFB, N. H. — Five of the models in the Officers' Wives Club Fashion Show held recently in the newly opened Officers' Open Mess were (l-r): Mmes. Path Groth, Lorna Stinson, Jean Hulse (seated), Barbra Davis and Marta Nielsen.

FT. LEE, VA. — Gifts totaling more than $300 have been distributed to three Ft. Lee activities by the NCO Wives Auxiliary Club.

Two hundred dollars more plus the $300 previously donated, were given to the U. S. Army Hospital; the Post PeeWee Football Club received $70, and the Brownie Girl Scout Troop was given $50.

The Auxiliary Club also decided to sponsor a free luncheon to be held at NCO open Mess 1 on Thursday, 17 Jan., 1 p.m. All wives of NCOs and of Specialists of comparable rank are invited to attend.

FT. BRAGG, N. C. — Final tabulations reveal the 82d Airborne Division voluntarily contributed $2,457.73 to the Hungarian Relief Fund.

Conducted during the Christmas holidays when approximately 40 percent of the Division was on leave, the drive had no specific monetary goal.

Division Artillery's contribution of $575 represented the largest major unit donation, with the 325th Airborne Infantry Regiment's $429 second.

Every man present for duty in Battery B of the 456th Field Artillery Battalion donated to its drive, for the largest small unit contribution.

GOEPPINGEN, GERMANY. — The International Rescue Committee for Hungarian Relief was $118 richer 8 Jan. when the Cooke Barracks Officers' Wives Club added to its regular luncheon a benefit bingo to raise funds for the organization.

Mrs. William R. Ward, president of the club, said the benefit was conducted after the club received an appeal from Mrs. Lauris Norstad, wife of the Supreme Allied Commander, for donations to the "Americans in Europe" section of the rescue committee.

Hostesses for the regular meeting were wives from the 8th Inf Div headquarters special staff sections. Mrs. Richard R. Bowen, III, was chairman, and Mrs. George E. Slade was co-chairman.

GENERAL I. D. WHITE, USA, AFFE/8th Army Commander, is congratulated by Army cheer leaders after the Army All-Stars beat the Air Force 21-6 in the annual Rice Bowl game in Tokyo. The girls are, left to right, Betty Neill, Joan Lehman, Marion Wrenback, Ann Cornelius, Judy Waiswilo, Lynn Bottomly, Mary Rodriguez, and Linda Lewis. Other cheer leaders not in the picture were: Barbara Kendall, Joan Williamson, Patty Henderson and Helen Okuno. Mrs. Maurine Hearst, Camp Drake Special Services Section, sponsors the group.

FT. NIAGARA, N. Y. — A gift of $50 was donated to Hungarian Relief at the meeting of the Ft. Niagara Officers' Wives Club at the Ft. Niagara Officers' Open Mess. Plans were also made to donate food to the Niagara Falls USO for Sunday night supper later this month.

Mrs. Charles Dickinson, president, presided at the meeting when Mrs. John Humston was named Thrift Shop Chairman, following the resignation of Mrs. Robert Johnson.

The following new members were welcomed: Mesdames Robert Stengel, Herbert Solomon, Angelo Diesu, Lavere Dodson, Robert Lester, William Weston and Robert Reinehr.

Mrs. David Noble was presented with the traditional silver spoon for departing members. Mrs. Frank Spencer and Mrs. Sherman Cannon were guests. Hostesses were ladies of the Army Garrison, Ft. Niagara.

FT. DIX, N. J. — Personnel of the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths contributed over $40,000 in chapel collections in 1956, post chief Chaplain (Col.) John K. Connelly has announced.

Coral Sea Crew Gives $7,500 For Hungarians

General Alfred M. Gruenther, USA-Ret., president of the American Red Cross, has accepted a check for $7,500 for Hungarian relief from the officers and crew of the aircraft carrier USS Coral Sea.

VAdm. J. L. Holloway, USN, chief of Naval Personnel, and Mrs. Frances Jaap, wife of Capt. Joseph A. Jaap, USN, skipper of the Coral Sea, presented the check in a ceremony at Red Cross national headquarters.

The donation was from the ship's recreation fund and the amount normally would have been used to buy Christmas presents for each member of the crew. It was given in addition to individual contributions for Hungarian relief by most crew members.

General Gruenther told Admiral Holloway that "Red Cross is deeply appreciative of this contribution and I think it represents the best tradition of the American Navy that the gift given for the oppressed people of Hungary should come out of the Christmas gift of the men."

The total contribution to Hungarian relief now exceeds the $5 million goal originally set by the Red Cross, General Gruenther said, but extended commitments by the U. S. government and the continuing flow of refugees from Hungary will require a larger Red Cross expenditure for Hungarian relief than was at first anticipated.

"Name It, We'll Make It" Boasts 3d Army Training Aids Sub-Center At Ft. Benning

"Name it, if we don't have it—we'll make it" is a motto which gives the scope of the Third Army Training Aids Sub-Center at Fort Benning, Ga.

Anything from a simple sign reading "Security Is Everybody's Business" to an intricate working model of a .30 caliber machine gun can be made or obtained from the sub-center.

"Our normal mission is to produce training aids of all types, which will in some practical visual manner, increase the efficiency and aid a unit or command in accomplishing its goals," Capt. Clinton G. Hayes, training aids officer, says.

Because of its size, the sub-center is divided into five sections, headquarters, supply, graphics, devices and distribution branches. Two officers, one warrant officer, three enlisted men and 22 civilians compose the staff of the five departments.

In headquarters, Captain Hayes coordinates the sub-center's job of rendering support to the Infantry School, major commands of The Infantry Center and to Third Infantry Division units. The bulk of training aids is used by The Infantry School and Third Division.

During a recent four-month period, 3,188 devices, 8,353 graphics and 6,358 line items, rental objects, were produced and rented out of the sub-center.

1st Lt. Robert J. Lynch, assistant training aids officer, commented: "It's not our main goal, but we do render a fairly large percentage of our work to other units throughout the Third Army area."

In charge of keeping the sub-center supplied with essential materials is CWO Joseph A. Hampton, who says, "We handle a varied supply department, which calls for all types of wood, paper for reproduction, duplicating and marking devices from a simple paint brush to the artist's stylus."

Training aids made in the two sections of the production branch include paper charts for instructional purposes, wooden devices, such as cutaway sections of weapons and practical apparatus used in instruction in the functioning of larger field equipment such as artillery pieces.

SFC William O. Carlisle, heads the production division which consists of a five-man staff of model makers and five illustrators. This branch makes working models such as field telephones, wooden models of the M-1 rifle, blackboards and scale models of new weapons like the 280-mm atomic cannon.

Paper aids consist mainly of large diagram charts, organizational field maps for terrain features and such items as signs for informational purposes.

Burial services were held at Rose Hill Memorial Park, Massillon, Ohio, for Maj. Thomas O. Adams, DC, AUS-Ret, who died of a sudden heart attack, at his home at Massillon, on 7 Jan. He was 55 years old.

Born at Cumberland, Md., Major Adams obtained both his academic and dental degrees from Ohio State University. During WWII, he was stationed at Walter Reed Army Hospital, Washington, D. C., and at Trieste. Retiring from active military duty in 1951, Major Adams had practiced dentistry in Massillon.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Mary Marquerite Adams of 2805 Wales Rd., N. E., Massillon; his mother, Mrs. Ellen M. Adams, a sister, Mrs. Gertrude O. Patton, and a brother, Mr. Robert S. Adams, all of Massillon.

Col. L. E. Goodwin, USAR-Ret.

Col. L. (Larry) E. Goodwin, USAR-Ret, 60, who died at the Base Hospital, Davis-Monthan AFB, Ariz., on 25 Nov., was buried at the Southlawn Military Cemetery, Tucson, on 28 Nov.

A native Bostonian, Colonel Goodwin served in France in WWI. He was an alumnus of Boston and Northeastern Universities and of the University of Florida. During WWII, he served at Gander AFB, Newfoundland, and from 1945 to 1947, on Saipan and Guam. In 1947, due to a heart condition, Colonel Goodwin was retired from active duty. He had since made his home at Tucson, Ariz., where he had participated actively in the photography laboratory of the Salpointe High School, working daily with the young people and giving them the benefit of his photographic knowledge.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary E. (Betty) Goodwin, Rt. 5, Box 798, Tucson; and one daughter, Miss Patricia Goodwin.

Col. Bernard Smith, USA-Ret.

Graveside services were held at Arlington National Cemetery, Washington, D. C., on 15 Jan., for Col. Bernard Smith, USA-Ret, who died, at the age of 67, at Lewisburg, Pa., on 14 Jan.

A veteran of 30 years in the Corps of Engineers, between 1926 and 1928, Colonel Smith supervised the first application of aerial photography to the vital mission of mapping the Philippine Islands. His assignments over the years included that of Assistant District Engineer at Cincinnati, District Engineer at Nashville, Tenn., and Engineer, Second Army at Memphis, Tenn. Prior to his retirement from active duty in 1947, Colonel Smith served as Commanding Officer of the 58th Engineer Construction Group in Japan. Since last September, he had been on the teaching staff of Bucknell University at Lewisburg, having previously been a member of the faculty of Lafayette College at Easton, Pa.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lillian Caldwell Smith of 2122 California St., N. W., Washington, D. C.; two daughters, Mrs. Wallace M. Erwin of Langley Forest, Va., and Mrs. Conrad E. LaGueux of Washington; and one sister, Mrs. Charles H. C. Pearsall of New Hampshire.

Col. Claude A. White, USA-Ret.

Graveside services were conducted at the National Cemetery, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., on 8 Jan., for Col. Claude A. White, USA-Ret, who died of leukemia, on 5 Jan., at Brooke Army Hospital, Ft. Sam Houston.

A native of Wisconsin, Colonel White was reared in Colorado and was graduated from Colorado A&M. He entered the Service in 1917. From 1935 to 1940, he served as an instructor at The Field Artillery School, Ft. Sill, Okla. Colonel White was retired from active duty in May 1941, and had since made his home in San Antonio, Tex.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ora White of 300 Charles Rd., San Antonio; and his mother, Mrs. Ella I. Drage of Loveland, Colo.

Col. Rudolph E. Smyser, USA-Ret.

Colonel Rudolph E. Smyser, USA-Ret., died at Fitzsimons Army Hospital, Denver, Colorado, on 12 January 1956, following a brief illness. Burial was in the Ft. Logan, Colorado National Cemetery 15 January. His wife of 51 years was with him until the end. In addition to his wife, Maude Smyser of 99 S. Downing St., Denver, Colorado, he is survived by his two sons, Col. Rudolph E. Smyser, Jr., Division Engineer, Ohio River Division, Cincinnati, Ohio, and Col. Craig Smyser, USA-Ret., 4013 Miramar Avenue, Dallas, Texas. A grandson, Craig Harrison Smyser, will graduate from West Point in June.

Col. Smyser was born in York, Pa., on 5 Dec. 1882. He enlisted during the Spanish-American War as a Private in Company A of the 47th Pennsylvania Volunteers and won a Volunteer Commission. He saw service in Cuba and the Philippines before being mustered out of Service as a 1st Lieutenant. A few months later, in 1901, he received his commission in the Regular Army and reported to Ft. Logan, Colorado, as the youngest Second Lieutenant in the Army.

Colonel Smyser served continuously from that time until his relief from active duty on 31 Jan. 1944. He won his first Silver Star during the Philippine Insurrection and received his second Silver Star for gallantry during Villa's Raid on Columbus, New Mexico, in 1916. He served in France during the First World War and was decorated with the Croix de Guerre by the French Government. His final assignment was as Director of Supply for the Ninth Service Command at Ft. Douglas, Utah. For his WW II service he received the Legion of Merit.

"Name It, We'll Make It" Boasts 3d Army Training Aids Sub-Center At Ft. Benning

"Name it, if we don't have it—we'll make it" is a motto which gives the scope of the Third Army Training Aids Sub-Center at Fort Benning, Ga.

Anything from a simple sign reading "Security Is Everybody's Business" to an intricate working model of a .30 caliber machine gun can be made or obtained from the sub-center.

"Our normal mission is to produce training aids of all types, which will in some practical visual manner, increase the efficiency and aid a unit or command in accomplishing its goals," Capt. Clinton G. Hayes, training aids officer, says.

Because of its size, the sub-center is divided into five sections, headquarters, supply, graphics, devices and distribution branches. Two officers, one warrant officer, three enlisted men and 22 civilians compose the staff of the five departments.

In headquarters, Captain Hayes coordinates the sub-center's job of rendering support to the Infantry School, major commands of The Infantry Center and to Third Infantry Division units. The bulk of training aids is used by The Infantry School and Third Division.

During a recent four-month period, 3,188 devices, 8,353 graphics and 6,358 line items, rental objects, were produced and rented out of the sub-center.

1st Lt. Robert J. Lynch, assistant training aids officer, commented: "It's not our main goal, but we do render a fairly large percentage of our work to other units throughout the Third Army area."

In charge of keeping the sub-center supplied with essential materials is CWO Joseph A. Hampton, who says, "We handle a varied supply department, which calls for all types of wood, paper for reproduction, duplicating and marking devices from a simple paint brush to the artist's stylus."

Training aids made in the two sections of the production branch include paper charts for instructional purposes, wooden devices, such as cutaway sections of weapons and practical apparatus used in instruction in the functioning of larger field equipment such as artillery pieces.

SFC William O. Carlisle, heads the production division which consists of a five-man staff of model makers and five illustrators. This branch makes working models such as field telephones, wooden models of the M-1 rifle, blackboards and scale models of new weapons like the 280-mm atomic cannon.

Paper aids consist mainly of large diagram charts, organizational field maps for terrain features and such items as signs for informational purposes.

U. S. COAST GUARD

Commandant—Vice Adm. Alfred C. Richmond
Secretary of the Treasury—George M. Humphrey

PRESIDENT Eisenhower has nominated Captains Stephen H. Evans, Edward H. Thiele and Allan Winbeck for advancement to the permanent rank of rear admiral.

Their Register Numbers in the 1 July 1956 Register are 33, 34 and 53.

The nominations were sent to the Senate for confirmation on 23 January.

President Eisenhower wants Congress to authorize $230,400,000 in new money for the Coast Guard in the fiscal year starting 1 July, compared with $204,175,000 in the current year.

The budget provides for an average military strength of 26,567, compared with 26,209 for fiscal '57.

Coast Guard spending, which is estimated at $212,762,250 for the fiscal '57 period, would go up to $221,792,389 if the President's request is approved as presented.

The budget notes that operation of 6 ocean stations, four in the Atlantic and two in the Pacific, requiring three cutters each, is financed by the Defense Department, with the U.S. Information Agency paying for one Coast Guard vessel, and the Navy for two ocean-going tugs.

The fiscal '58 funds would provide for construction of 10 95-foot boats to replace 10 of the 61 overage 83-foot craft for search and rescue, law enforcement and harbor entrance patrol duties.

Procurement of four long-range land planes and two helicopters is required to replace four PBIG's which are overage and two helicopters lost in crashes.

The budget reports the need for a new Coast Guard facility on lower Manhattan Island, N. Y., since the City is taking back space at Pier 9, East River.

The Coast Guard Reserve is building towards a mobilization force of 40,000 trained officers and men. The fiscal '58 program sets its sights on an increase from 8,526 to 12,540 in the number of Reservists receiving training. Plan is to have 25,200 officers and men in training by July 1960.

FISCAL '58 RETIREMENTS are expected to include 86 involuntary and 105 voluntary officers, 33 and 41 warrant officers, respectively, and 124 involuntary and 206 voluntary in enlisted ranks.

The Coast Guard has an estimated retired list of 4731 involuntary and 4009 voluntary retirees in the current fiscal year, expects to have 4797 and 4376, respectively, in fiscal '58.

Retired pay counts for $26,400,000 in the new Coast Guard budget, compared with $24,925,000 this year.

Col. Edwards MDW Deputy

Col. David L. Edwards, USA, has been assigned to the staff of Maj. Gen. John G. Van Houten, USA, Commanding General, Military District of Washington, as Deputy Commander and Chief of Staff. His previous assignment was in the Office of Defense Mobilization, The Executive Office of the President.

14 MILES OF WIRE IN 6 MINUTES

FT. BRAGG, N. C.

A NEW concept in aerial wire laying A proved successful here when a helicopter carrying specially constructed apparatus laid some 14 miles of communication wire in less than six minutes as a part of Operation Market II.

The new device consists of six galvanized steel tubes, each nine feet long, and carries a total of 54 miles of combat ground wire. Each tube can hold nine miles of wire in 18 one-half mile containers.

Devised by Capt. Edward Landry, USA, executive officer of the 4th Transportation Co. (light helicopter) (H-34), the device is suspended from the sling mechanism of a helicopter. As many as six lines of wire can be strung at a single time.

MAJ. GEN. JOHN W. BOWEN, USA, 82d Airborne Division Commander, hands a commendation for meritorious service to Chief Warrant Officer William C. Daniels, USA, who retires after 14 years of service, including 10 as a paratrooper. CWO Daniels is a graduate of the Basic Airborne Course at Ft. Benning, Georgia and received his commission at the Ft. Sill, Okla., Officer Candidate School. He will utilize his Airborne Training by studying aeronautical engineering in civilian life.

Capt. Landry, whose helicopter unit, normally stationed at Ft. Benning, Ga., is currently attached to the 101st Airborne Div. at Ft. Campbell, Ky., began his project early last December at the request of his commanding officer, Maj. William A. Howell, USA.

The biggest test came during the recent airborne exercises at Ft. Bragg, however. Shortly after the combat troops had parachuted behind the "enemy" lines, members of the 4th helicopter company in a helicopter piloted by 1st Lt. Donald H. Olsen, USA, skinned over tree tops to the command post.

INDUSTRY IN DEFENSE

Maj. Gen. McKenzie Heads New Subsistence Agency

Maj. Gen. Henry R. McKenzie, USA, has been appointed Executive Director for Subsistence and will direct operations of the Military Subsistence Supply Agency, established under a Department of Defense Single Manager Assignment to provide the Armed Services with food supplies.

The agency is responsible for wholesale subsistence supply to all military services, including cataloging, standardization, requirements determination, procurement, production, inspection, wholesale distribution and maintenance.

The Agency directs operations of 10 Market Centers located throughout the United States which have been redesignated as Military Subsistence Market Centers and field buying offices. As an indication of the magnitude of this mission, the Fiscal Year 1957 procurement program exceeds $700,000,000.

GENERAL MCKENZIE was one of the pioneers in central procurement of subsistence during World War II when he directed purchase of perishable food supplies for the Armed Services as Officer-in-Charge, Quartermaster Market Center System, from 1942 to 1945. General McKenzie was born on July 25, 1904, at Hamilton, Texas, and was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in 1929.

His most recent assignments have included service as Quartermaster, Headquarters, U. S. Forces, Austria, in 1953-54; Comptroller and Assistant Quartermaster General for Materiel, Office of The Quartermaster General in 1954-55, and Comptroller, Far East Command from March to December 1956.

Air Industry Leaders Named To IAS Council

A dozen aviation executives, engineers and educators have been elected to terms of office of from one to three years on the Institute of the Aeronautical Sciences Council. They will assume their new positions at adjournment of the Institute's 25th Annual Meeting, 28-31 Jan. in New York City.

Elected to three-year terms were William B. Bergen, Executive Vice President, The Glenn L. Martin Co.; Victor E. Carbonara, President, Kollsman Instrument Corp.; Jack S. Parker, Vice President, General Electric Co.; Henry J. E. Reid, Director, Langley Aeronautical Laboratory, NACA; and Edward C. Wells, Vice President, Engineering Boeing Airplane Co.

Raymond C. Sebold, Vice President, Engineering, Convair Division, General Dynamics Corp., was elected to serve out the remaining two years of the term of Mundy I. Peale, whose election as IAS President was announced last month.

AF Orders $144 Million More F-102s and F-106s

The Air Force has awarded Convair Division of General Dynamics Corp. a $70,200,000 contract for an undisclosed number of F-106A delta-wing, all-weather jet interceptors and supporting equipment, General Joseph T. McNarney, USAF-Ret., Convair president, announces.

This is the second F-106A production contract awarded to Convair by the Air Materiel Command. Last Summer an initial $83,000,000 contract for the advanced supersonic interceptor was disclosed. That contract subsequently was amended to include additional aircraft, making the total committed for F-106A aircraft to that point $146,000,000.

The fifth Air Force contract for Convair F-102A supersonic all-weather jet interceptors, amounting to approximately $74,000,000, also was announced by General McNarney. Deliveries of the delta-wing F-102A and TF-102A combat trainers have been underway to fighter-interceptor squadrons of the Air Defense Command since last spring.

Squadrons now flying F-102As include the 327th Fighter-Interceptor Squadron at George AFB, Calif.; the 11th FIS at Duluth, Minn.; the 323d FIS at Truax Field, Wis.; the 31st FIS at Wurtsmith AFB, Mich., and the second FIS at Suffolk County AFB, N. Y.

Truckers Win Award For Aiding Reserves

The Department of Defense Reserve Award has been presented to the American Trucking Association, Inc., Washington, D. C. for outstanding cooperation with reserve program of the Armed Forces.

Maj. Gen. S. R. Browning, USA, Deputy Chief of Army Transportation gave the award to Mr. R. C. Williams, President of the Association, at the ATA Executive Committee's mid-winter dinner 24 Jan.

The organization was cited for its active support among affiliated state trucking associations and member companies that resulted in the formation and sponsorship of motor transport units in 24 of the 48 states.

XROE-1 ASSEMBLED AND COLLAPSED—The Marines XROE-1 one-man helicopter, built by Hiller Helicopters and designed to be collapsed into a small package for easy transportation or parachute drop, is shown in assembled and disassembled positions. Weighing less than 250 pounds, it is powered with a Nelson 4-cylinder opposed, 2-cycle, aircooled gasoline engine manufactured by Barmecite Products, Inc.

Flight Simulators For Grumman F11F-1s

The first of two trailerized flight simulators for the Grumman F11F-1 "Tiger" fighter plane has been delivered to the Navy by Link Aviation, Inc., Binghamton, N. Y.

Called Operational Flight Simulator Trainers (OFST's), the training units represent the first for a supersonic jet fighter to be built by Link under contract with the Navy's Training Devices Center, Port Washington, N. Y.

Link, a subsidiary of the General Precision Equipment Corporation, is also building simulators for the Air Force's supersonic F-102 and F-106 interceptors.

The F11F-1 simulators—the second of which will be delivered to the Navy on 28 Feb.—contain some of the latest refinements in electronic simulation. Each area in the trailer has its own temperature control and is serviced by a high-capacity air conditioning system.

The simulators will be used by the Navy to provide both preflight and refresher type flight training for pilots of the carrier-based F11F-1 fighter.

The Link F11F simulator duplicates, to a very high degree, the performance (instrumentation responses) and flight control feel of the actual airplane. Even physical sensations, such as rough air, buffet effects, static and lightning are reproduced in the cockpit with a high degree of realism.

NOTES ON INDUSTRY

THE Institute of Aeronautical Sciences will confer the Lawrence B. Sperry Award on George F. Jude, a 37-year-old New York engineer, for his contributions to the advancement of automatic and all-weather flight. Mr. Jude is Director of Flight Control Engineering at the Sperry Gyroscope Company, Great Neck, and the first Sperry employee to receive the award. The citation will be presented 28 Jan. at the Institute's 25th annual Honors Night Dinner in New York.

C-V Chairman on NACA

Charles J. McCarthy, chairman of the board of directors of Chance Vought Aircraft, Inc., Dallas, Tex., has been appointed a member of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics. President Eisenhower named him to succeed Arthur E. Raymond, vice-president—engineering, Douglas Aircraft Company, whose term has expired.

Mr. McCarthy, an aviation industry designer, engineer and executive since World War I, will serve a five-year term. He and the other 16 members of the Committee serve without pay.

Mr. McCarthy, a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was employed by the Navy from the start of World War I to 1926, working on the NC Flying Boat design and other aviation projects. He then joined Chance Vought to head the engineering department.

Joins Republic

James L. Murray, assistant to the chairman of the board of directors of the Garrett Corporation, has been named administrative assistant to the president of Republic Aviation Corporation. Mr. Murray resigned from the Air Force in 1954 with the rank of lieutenant colonel. While in the service he was chief of the engineering division of USAFE and director of engineering of the Air Materiel Force Europe.

Navy Man Joins McCulloch

Joseph A. Cipolla has been named director of the experimental test department at McCulloch Motors Corp. During WW II, Mr. Cipolla served in the Navy as executive officer of the destroyer USS Charles Ausborne.

MATS Turboprop Test

A review of the Boeing YC-97J turboprop test program was made recently by Col. Claude W. Smith, USAF, of the Continental Division of the Military Air Transport Service before members of the Supervisor and Foremen's Council at the Curtiss-Wright Propeller Division at Caldwell, N. J. Colonel Smith, who commands the 1700th Air Transport Group of MATS, spoke of the success of the program in fully proving the reliability and utilization of aircraft power plants using turboprop engines equipped with giant Curtiss-Wright Turboelectric propellers.

"The significance of the YC-97J program," he said, "is that it has given us far greater capabilities for turboprop aircraft. More importantly, it has validated power plants for the new Douglas C-133A transports which are equipped with this same type of engine-propeller combination."

Colonel Smith added that "the co-operation between Curtiss-Wright and the Air Force in making this test program a success has been the finest I have ever seen."

Dove Heads DC Office

Paul S. Dove, former electronics specialist for the Navy and Air Force, has become manager of Du Mont's Washington office, Richard A. Horton, general sales manager of the Government Division of Allen B. Du Mont Laboratories, Inc., announces. Mr. Dove succeeds Justin R. Sypher, Jr., who resigned to return to his home in southern Maryland and a position as a project director at the Naval Air Test Center.

Former Navy Lt. Joins ATA

Leo Seybold of United Air Lines will join the Air Transport Association as Assistant to the President and in charge of Federal Affairs, 15 Feb., Stuart G. Tipton, President of the Association, has announced. Mr. Seybold joined United Airlines in 1946 after two years as a lieutenant in the Navy.

Azusa Plant For Ruckstell

The Ruckstell Corp., through its President, G. E. Ruckstell, announces that it has moved its offices and operations from East Los Angeles into a new building in Azusa. The firm develops and manufactures permanent magnet alternators and auxiliary power units for the aircraft industry and the Armed Forces. It also works on turbines and reciprocating engines for auxiliary power units. Officials of the company, which is a totally owned subsidiary of The General Tire and Rubber Company, include: Harry Goodwin, General Manager; Allen Puder, Chief Engineer and Director of Sales; Robert J. Ringhoff, Controller, and Slauson Vosburg, Customer Relations.

Radar Range For Edwards

Dynamics Corporation of America announces that its subsidiary, Reeves Instrument Corporation, will build the instrumentation radars for a new flight test range being constructed across the Mojave Desert for the use of the Air Research and Development Command in testing and developing new "X" (experimental) aircraft. This new chain of radar stations will be operated by ARDC's Air Force Flight Test Center and the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics' High Speed Flight Station at Edwards AFB on Rogers Dry Lake in California and will extend over 400 miles.

USNA '49 Grad Is Sales Rep

Fred George Baur, USNA '49, a former Navy air pilot and liaison officer, has joined Engelhard Industries as a sales representative in Washington, D. C., for the firm's military service division. Consisting of more than 30 companies with factories and offices throughout the world, Engelhard Industries manufactures a wide range of products for the Armed Forces, including electrical and electronic equipment and parts, lamps, temperature-sensing devices, optical goods, and gas-analysis systems. Lieutenant Baur resides at 1300 Seaton Lane, Falls Church, Va., with his wife, the former Audrey Bigelow of Pittsburgh, and two sons, Freddie Karl, 4, and Kurt Christian, 18 months.

Head C-W Division

Francis J. Wiegand has been promoted to the newly created position of Engineering Administrator for Wright Aeronautical Division, Curtiss-Wright Corp., Wood-Ridge, N. J., according to an announcement made by Joseph V. Miccio, Vice President of Curtiss-Wright Corporation and General Manager of the Wright Aeronautical Division.

New Navy 'Copter Trainer

Bell Helicopter Corporation has announced plans to develop and produce a new Navy helicopter trainer to be identified as the Bell HTL-7. President Harvey Gaylord said the HTL-7 will be the first Navy trainer designed specifically as an integrated trainer, which means the new helicopter will serve for both basic and instrument flight training.

The Navy order calls for the delivery of 18 HTL-7 helicopters starting in December and ending in September 1958.

Solar Gets AF Award

Solar Aircraft Company has been awarded an Air Force contract for $1,300,000 of production facilities for J75 jet engine components. The J75, an advanced design, 15,000-pound thrust engine, was designed by Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Company. Solar's Des Moines, Iowa, plant will build components for the engine in production quantities for Ford Motor Company's Aircraft Engine Division, which is manufacturing J75's under license from Pratt & Whitney.

Cantwell Joins Revere

Ray Cantwell, formerly with ARDC, Baltimore, and Lockheed Sales Engineering, Georgia Division, has joined Revere Corp., Wallingford, Conn. and will represent Revere in the Washington and Baltimore areas as a technical sales representative.

DuMont Promotions

Promotion of three officials in DuMont's Government Division has been announced. J. Nelson Lord, Jr., was appointed manager of the newly-established Government Relations department; Richard A. Horton was named general manager of the Government Division, and Paul F. Brown was appointed government contract administration manager.

Lear Backlog Up

Lear, Inc., booked $80,938,000 in new orders during 1956, the largest volume in the company's history.

Year-end backlog was at record high of $64,743,000, despite the fact that 1956 shipments exceeded those of any previous year. This represented a 21.1 percent increase over the $53,459,922 backlog for the previous year.

Heads Waltham Labs

Richard M. Osgood has been appointed manager of the Waltham Laboratories of Sylvania Electric Products Inc. Before joining Sylvania, he was Chief of the Electronic Defense Systems Division of the Air Materiel Command, USAF.

Rocket Study Contract

The Air Research and Development Command has announced a half-million dollar study contract to the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Company. The contract is concerned with the development of a new type of air-to-ground rocket.

ARDC revealed that Honeywell's portion of the program will include design, mock-ups and wind tunnel models of the rocket. Honeywell's Aeronautical Division's Missile Controls Laboratory at Los Angeles will be carrying out the work.

The rocket will be suitable for delivery by fighter aircraft. Additional work on the project will be conducted at ARDC's Air Force Armament Center, Eglin AFB, Fla.

Missile Tracker

The American Machine & Foundry Company is producing an improved radar beacon for tracking rockets and guided missiles. The beacon consists of a receiver-transmitter, power supply including battery, antenna and special interconnecting cables.

MAJ. DEAN H. REYNOLDS, USA, new First Armored Division Aviation Officer, checks over a helicopter engine. The major assumed the new duties the 1st of January. Prior to the present assignment at Ft. Polk, La., he was in the Korean Military Advisory Group in the Far East.

Automatic Navigator

Ryan Aeronautical Company has developed a self-contained electronic automatic navigator, Model 103, for the Army Electronic Proving Ground at Ft. Huachuca, Ariz. As an outgrowth of the navigator development program, Ryan currently is producing an automatic navigator (AN/APN-67) under a $5-million contract, and also a helicopter hovering detector (AN/APN-97). Both are for the Navy.

Appointments—

William P. Diesing has been appointed manager of marketing for the Specialty Heating Products Section of the Aircraft Products Department of General Electric. In his new position he will have responsibility for the marketing of thermal conditioning and specialty heating products, which are widely used in aircraft, missile and airborne electronic industries.

Edward Glodek has been appointed to the position of Manager, Military Relations Division, Sales Department of the Wright Aeronautical Division, Curtiss-Wright Corp., Wood-Ridge, N. J.

Russell J. Keller, formerly director of engineering of American Machine & Foundry Company's Cleveland Welding Division, has been appointed engineering assistant to AMF vice president and General Products Group Executive, Robert W. Kerr.

Col. Schooley Elected To GSL Insurance Bd.

Col. William E. Schooley, USAR, has been elected to the Board of Directors of General Services Life Insurance Company. He is Vice-President of Washington's American Security and Trust Company.

Action On Capitol Hill

Introduced In The House

COAST GUARD BENEFITS—HR 3018, Rep. Bonner (D-NC), authorizes expenditures for recreation and welfare of Coast Guard personnel and the schooling of their dependent children.

RELIEF FOR WAFFS—HR 3028, Rep. Dawson (D-III), provides for relief of certain female members of the AF.

QUARTERS ALLOWANCE FOR RESERVISTS—HR 3041, Rep. Gavin (D-Pa), authorizes payment of a basic allowance for quarters to enlisted members of Reserve components on active duty for training as if they were Regulars.

MEDICAL CARE FOR RETIRED—HR 3208, Rep. Boggs (D-La), authorizes retired members of the Armed Forces to receive same benefits accorded dependents of active duty personnel under Dependent Medical Care Act.

MARINE LT GEN'S—HR 3235, Rep. Hebert (D-La), establishes a peacetime limitation of five on the number of lieutenant generals in the Marine Corps.

SURVIVOR BENEFITS FOR RETIRED—HR 3260, Rep. Utt (R-Calif), provides that all retired members of the Armed Forces who served not less than 25 years on active duty and who thereafter die shall be considered to have died service-connected deaths.

Introduced In The Senate

CORRECT ARMY INJUSTICE—S. 624, Sen. Green (D-Ri), provides for payment of compensation to officers who were found under the provisions of the Army and AF Vitalization and Retirement Equalization Act to have been removed from the active list of the Army without justification and who were subsequently restored to the active list or advanced on the retired list.

Journal Hill Notes

THE SECOND WOMAN ever to serve on the House Armed Services Committee was named to one of the vacant Republican seats this week. She is Representative Katharine St. George (R-NY), who is beginning her 11th year in the Congress. Mrs. St. George is the wife of a WWII Navy petty officer and the daughter of a Navy veteran of the Spanish-American War. During her most recent Congressional race, she defeated famed Stars and Stripes cartoonist Bill Mauldin.

NEW REPUBLICAN MEMBERS of the House Armed Services Committee, in addition to Mrs. St. George, are Representatives B. Carroll Reece (Tenn) and Charles S. Gubser (Calif). Congressman Reece, one-time National Chairman of the Republican Party, is beginning his 16th term in the Congress. During WWI he served with the 26th Division, AEF, and was decorated with the DSC, DSM, Purple Heart and Croix de Guerre with palm. The Congressman's daughter, Louise, is the wife of Col. George W. Marthens, USAF. Congressman Gubser, who is serving his third term in the Congress, is the son-in-law of Lt. Col. J. H. Brimberry, USA-Ret.

TOP BOX-OFFICE ATTRACTION at the Capitol is a movie, "The Man On The Hill," filmed by the Office of Armed Forces Information and Education. The film depicts an average day in the life of a Congressman and shows scenes from a session of the House Armed Services Committee. The movie made such a hit with Congressmen who saw it that a number of them are arranging to buy it and run it off for the folks back home. A scene-stealer in the picture is a copy of THE JOURNAL being studiously perused by a Serviceman.

USMC Revamps Dental Officer Structure

The Marine Corps has reorganized its Naval dental officer structure.

Under the new setup, formed by order of General Randolph McC. Pate, CMC, all dental officers have been assigned to units known as Force Dental Companies. There is one such outfit for each division and wing.

Previously, Navy dental officers were assigned to Marine Corps units at the group level. The new structure permits assignments to be made more easily to meet the day to day needs of the Corps. The mission of the Dental Companies is to maintain the dental health of combat commands and to provide highly mobile dental forces for field commands.

Each of the six Force Dental Companies—made up of a headquarters platoon, a clinical platoon and a prosthetic platoon—can be subdivided so that dental teams can be sent to independent units.

A Force dental officer will be placed on the special staff of Fleet Marine Force Atlantic and Pacific commanders. The Headquarters Battalion of FMF Headquarters includes a Force Dental Company which serves as an administrative unit.

Ft. Rucker's 99th BCT Gets Shoulder Patch

Members of the newly organized 99th Battalion Combat Team stationed at The Army Aviation Center, Ft. Rucker, Ala., will wear a distinctive unit shoulder patch—a red and blue shield bordered in yellow divided by a yellow lightning flash with two yellow stylized figures nine on each side.

The patch to be worn by each member of the Combat Team on the left sleeve signifies the infantry, artillery and engineer elements, which compose the organization; through the respective blue, scarlet and yellow colors of the branches.

The two figures nine in the design symbolize both the numerical designation of the 99th and the safety pin pull ring and safety lever of a grenade.

The two parts of the grenade shown in the new patch represent the combat team's mission, which is to arm and to strike.
